POLICE SEARCH IS AIDED BY GIRL

FREEMAN FEARED HIS WIFE, SAYS WITNESS

FATHER CALLED 'OLD TOP'

Sally Freeman, on Stand, Explains Affectionate Letters to Her Parent

Mrs. Hermon Tellen, a nurse, testified in the Freeman divorce trial this afternoon that Freeman refused food prepared by his wife because he said he was afraid she would poison him. This, said the witness, was on an occasion when Freeman was ill.

Efforts of counsel to controvert testimony that she did not love her father marked the cross-examination today of sixteen-year-old Sally Freeman, daughter of Margaret Reed and Ernest B. Freeman, in private session before Judge Fosdick.

Mrs. Freeman, Hyde Park heiress, is suing her husband, treasurer and manager of the Sturtevant Blower Works, for divorce.

Attorney Thomas Hunt, counsel for Freeman, in cross-examination, produced letters in which the girl called her father "old top," "angel-face," gave frequent expression of love and signed with rows of crosses, signifying "hugs and kisses." The statement that she did not love her father was made by Sally yesterday in direct testimony.

Attorney Hunt endeavored to re-

INTERVENTION INEVITABLE, SAYS MEXICAN OFFICIALS

Washington, Jan. 23.—Lack of a Mexican policy by the United States is making intervention inevitable, Manuel A. Stena, former consul general from Mexico to New York, told the Senate Mexican affairs sub-committee today. Stena related the circumstances which placed William Linn at Vera Cruz. He said William Bayard Hale was placed there as representing the United States government. He was friendly to the Huerta regime. When this was made known Stena said former Secretary Bryan supplanted Hale with William Linn. Linn held a revolutionary conference at Vera Cruz in favor of Villa, he declared. With the cooperation of the United States a propaganda was started for Villa, according to Stena.

SHOT AND BEATEN BY ROBBERS

Springfield Clerk Fights Off Two Men, Despite Bullet in His Side

Springfield, Jan. 23.—Benjamin D. Mindle, a clerk, was brutally beaten and shot by two men in the shoe store of Harry Saltzman, No. 135 Main street, this morning.

Despite his injuries Mindle put up such a fight that the men fled without rifling the cash register, which contained a considerable sum of money.

The plucky clerk collapsed on the sidewalk and was removed to the Mercy Hospital, where he is in a critical condition. He sustained three deep cuts on his head and a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Mindle opened the store at 8 o'clock. A short time later two men entered, and one asked for a pair of rubbers. Mindle began to fit the rubbers to the man's shoes. He put one rubber on when the man in the chair took a heavy wrench from his pocket and struck the clerk three times on the head.

Mindle started to rise, when a shot rang out. Because of the clerk's dazed condition he did not feel the bullet, and began to fight his assailants.

The men became frightened and ran out the store, turning into Congress street and from there into North street.

Mindle tried to telephone to the police, but was unsuccessful. He then staggered out the front door and dropped on the sidewalk. Passersby found the wounded man, and he retained consciousness long enough to give the police a description of his assailants.

He said the men were between twenty-five and thirty years of age, one being about five feet six inches tall and the other about two inches taller. Both had smooth faces, wore dark clothing and felt hats. One of the men was seen to change his hat for a cap as he ran.

Service Man Tosses Flaming Can of Benzine

A can of benzine, turned into a can of fire by the short circuiting of an electric wire, caused damage estimated at $200, and blocked traffic at School and Tremont streets today. Frank Scott, employed by A. E. Andrews, dealers in typewriters, in the rear of the basement at No. 6 Bacon street, was using the benzine in cleaning a typewriter, when a flash from the wire ignited the gas from the benzine.

Scott, a veteran of the 101st Machine Gun Company, picked up the blazing can and started for the door. As upon caught in the door, he managed, however, to toss the inflammable mass into the street, where it burned itself out. Others, seeing the blaze, rang in an alarm, bringing many pieces of fire apparatus and a big crowd to the scene and blocking traffic.

THREE DIE ON SCAFFOLD AT MONTREAL

By International News Service.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—A triple hanging took place in the Bordeaux jail yard today when Patrick Delorme, Murdock Allen and Romeo Lepoint were executed for the murder of Alcide Payette, a farmer of St. Sulpice Parish, last August.

Vigorous efforts had been made to secure commutation of sentence to imprisonment, but the Government refused to grant the appeal.

Allen was only seventeen years old when the crime was committed. The trio were convicted after a sensational trial. It was brought out at the trial while on bail the three stole a motor car and drove to the home of Payette. They broke into the house and when Payette gave battle they shot him dead.

MARTENS DENIES TIDING MEXICAN PROPAGANDA

Washington, Jan. 23.—Ludwig Martens, "Soviet ambassador," today repudiated connection with Linn E. Gale, editor of Gale's Weekly, an alleged Bolshevik magazine published in Mexico City. Evidence before a senate sub-committee connected Martens with Gale in alleged Bolshevik agitation in Mexico. "I have had letters from Gale asking me to advance money for his activities in Mexico," Martens said. "I repeatedly told Gale that I would not support his activities."

CONFIRMS HOLLAND'S REFUSAL

News That Dutch Will Not Surrender Ex-Kaiser Given Out at The Hague

London, Jan. 23.—[illegible] German government believe that they are powerless to demand the surrender of the ex-Kaiser from Holland, said a Geruan wireless dispatch picked up here this afternoon.

The Hague, Jan. 23.—Holland has formally refused to surrender the ex-Kaiser for trial by an allied tribunal, a news agency announced, here today.

Paris, Jan. 23.—The official text of Holland's reply to the allies' request for the extradition of the ex-Kaiser probably will not be published here until tomorrow. Although unexpected delay developed in making the contents public, it is known from official sources that the answer is negative.

The first official forecast of the contents of the Dutch reply to the allies' request for the Kaiser was carried by the American paper today.

Sir William Sutherland, the parliamentary secretary to Premier Lloyd George, was quoted in London cablegrams to the International News Service as stating that Holland refused to give up the former German Emperor on the ground that his claim could not be made by a third power.

The International News Service was also first to announce that the reply had been despatched from The Hague to Paris. These news cablegrams contained the exclusive information that the allies did not contemplate a demand for the extradition of the former German Crown Prince.

Kaiser Refused to Lead Troops and Die Bravely in Battle, Says Gothein

Berlin, Jan. 23.—That the pan-Germans and conservatives, when they saw the German cause was lost in 1918, wanted the ex-Kaiser to sacrifice his life at the head of his troops in battle in the hope of preserving the Hohenzollern dynasty, was revealed today by ex-Minister of the Treasury George Gothein, who resigned from the German Cabinet

AMERICAN READERS ASKED TO AID HERO'S FAMILY

William G. Clancey, murdered Charlestown patrolman, depicted carrying the first American flag over the top at Vimy Ridge. As a member of the famous Canadian Regiment, Princess Pat's, he was the first American to carry Old Glory into enemy territory.

Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.—John XV, 13.

What more fitting tribute could be paid to the memory of William G. Clancey, twenty-four, a Boston policeman stationed at Charlestown, who was vicious'y murdered by a gunman while safeguarding the public, than a contribution to the fund started by the American to bring a little comfort to the hearts of his young wife and three-year-old child, who are now on the way to America, ignorant of the fate which has befallen their loved one?

Clancey was a hero—even to the last. As a member of Princess Pat's Regiment he was decorated many times for bravery, and was the first American to carry the American flag over the top. He died as he had lived—a clean-living youth.

It requires no word picture to show the tremendous shock his little family will experience when they land in America several days hence and learn of the tragedy.

Here is an opportunity to aid a deserving cause. The brave policeman's family should not be made to suffer for the act of an assassin while in the performance of his duties.

The American has donated $100 to the fund and will gladly receive and acknowledge further subscriptions. Address Clancey Fund Editor, Boston American, Boston 3, Mass.

GIRL'S TIP MAY LEAD TO ARREST

Man Sought for Murder of Patrolman Clancey Missing Since Wednesday

Patrolman William G. Clancey's slayer has escaped from the city. The police know who the man is by description and know where he lived and when he spent his time.

Not since Wednesday has he been seen at his lodgings or about any of the places he frequented. He was at the dance and he fired the shot which ended the hero policeman's life.

A girl who was in the dance hall has furnished the officers a complete description of the man. She knew him by sight but not by name. He lived in a house quite handy to here.

He is an Italian and among others of his race in the West End appeared to be well known. The principal effort of the police at this time is to locate some of his friends.

Captain Michael Goff with Lieutenant Charles H. McCluskey, has visited at the house, in Cambridge street.

WINNIPEG A "DEAD CITY," WITHOUT NEWSPAPERS FOR A WEEK

PRESS SUSPENDED DURING FIGHT OVER NEWSPRINT

By International News Service.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 23.—Today completed one week during which the more than one million persons comprising the populations of the city of Winnipeg and the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan have been without daily newspapers.

It has been the gloomiest week within their remembrance, not excepting the early days of the war. A week ago today the papers in the two provinces were forced to suspend publication, the result of the controversy with Fort Frances newsprint manufacturers, ending in the latter refusing to ship paper here.

What it means for a good sized city to be without daily newspapers has been sharply demonstrated here. Ordinarily all is life and gaiety in the streets of Winnipeg at this season, but over the city there now hangs a pall of dreariness.

The first effect was the depriving of the citizens of authentic information of news of the day. As the result, the wildest rumors have been current throughout the city. Having no circulating medium of intelligence the great mass of the population is unable to discern what and what not to believe.

Newspaper offices made an effort to meet this by posting bulletins in front of their offices, but this reached comparatively few citizens.

University students issue small "fly sheets" daily, but these fall so short of requirement that citizens do not bother to take them home.

There has been a tremendous decrease in business everywhere. The mercantile houses, usually crowded by bargain hunters at this time of year, are suffering great losses.

One section alone in my department store has a falling off of $3,000 daily in receipts," said the head of the concern.

The same condition is true of nearly all lines of business. Theatres are heavy losers. Even the street railways are badly affected, the lack of advertised attractions and general depression causing many persons to remain at home.

Optimists believe that the dailies will get going again by Monday or Wednesday, but the management of the papers say they will not start until a plentiful supply of newsprint is assured.

100 Men and 50 Carts Cleaning Streets of Snow

More than 100 men and fifty single carts were ordered to clean the snow from the streets in the downtown section today by Commissioner of Public Works Thomas F. Sullivan.

On Washington, Tremont and Summer streets, the snow was left to a depth of six inches by the Boston Elevated after cleaning the streets. It was stated at the office of the commissioner that the company is required to clean only an amount of snow equivalent to what they push off their tracks in these streets.

Garbage collections will be delayed as a consequence of using city men to clean the streets.

35 NEW CASES OF INFLUENZA IN BOSTON

Total in Four Days Is 87, But Deaths Are Few; Disease Is Classed as "Mild"

Thirty-five new cases of influenza and the first death from the disease since January 10, was the twenty-four-hour record reported to the Board of Health today.

The latest influenza victim is Amelia Belisle Hebert, 29, of No. 83 Union Park street, who died at the City Hospital.

Today's cases were the largest number reported since the recurrence of the epidemic and exceeded yesterday's by nine, making the four days' total 87 cases. Deaths from pneumonia numbered six, and seven new cases were reported.

Despite the increase in influenza cases, Health Commissioner Woodward issued a reassuring statement declaring it to be of a mild type.

"The small number of deaths show that the disease is of a mild type of catarrhal infection," he said. "The way it affects the individual depends upon his characteristics. With some it attacks the digestive system, some the nervous, some muscular and with others it is of the pneumonia type."

The disease is scattered, averaging about one case to each ward except in Ward 8, where there are six cases; Ward 6, four cases; Ward 13, four cases; Wards 26 and 13, three cases each, and Ward 25, two cases.

A year ago at this time there were 144 new cases and nineteen deaths from influenza.

HABEAS CORPUS CASES OF "REDS" POSTPONED

Hearings scheduled for today in the United States District Court on habeas corpus petitions brought in behalf of alleged "Reds" confined at Deer Island, were postponed until next Tuesday. One petition was brought by Katherine Chapman for Mrs. Amy Hoiper and the other by Antoinette F. Konikow in behalf of 197 of the prisoners.

33 TO 38 CENTS FAIR PRICE FOR LAMB LOIN

Straight Wheat Flour Issued by U. S. Grain Corporation Brings $12 a Barrel

The list below shows the average maximum and minimum retail prices for those who go to market and carry their purchases home. The consumer, by careful buying, may be able to purchase meats below the minimum. Small dealers who maintain delivery service and give credit may be obliged to charge more than the maximum.

"Fair prices" are based upon cuts from "western dressed" medium grade animals. Fancy or heavier grades and common or lighter grades would sell for more or less than the following list, issued by the Federal Fair Price Committee for Massachusetts:

BEEF.
Wholesale price of hindquarters	20 to 24

DUTCH REFUSAL FOR EX-KAISER CONFIRMED

Will Decline to Surrender Him For Trial as Announced in American Yesterday

Herr Gothein is leader of the Democratic party and is chairman of the National Assembly Commission which has been investigating responsibility for the war and its prolongation. The Gothein commission was really a parliamentary grand jury to bring indictments against German war criminals.

CAUSES SENSATION.

The startling disclosures that the ex-Kaiser was counselled to emulate the warrior-kings of old and go into the fray sword in hand at the head of his army is considered one of the most sensational revelations that have yet been made of the events that moved with such lightning-like rapidity around the former war lord in the closing days of the world conflict.

"I believe that the extradition and trial of the ex-Kaiser would be a body blow to German republicanism," said Herr Gothein. "The former Emperor is personally disliked by the pan-Germans, who call him 'William the Timid' because he was not bold enough for their tastes during the war. The old conservatives disliked his theatrical manners, his fondness for making pompous speeches and the unsteadiness of his policies. They also disapproved of his intimate relations with big Jewish industrial magnates, scientists and artists and his frequent rude and crude treatment of others. Above all, they will never forgive him for fleeing into Holland.

"They wanted him, in the interests of the dynasty, and knowing that the war had been lost, to sacrifice his life in battle. His failure to do this did the greatest injury to the monarchical idea and the Hohenzollern dynasty."

Says Kaiser May Be Tried Whether He Be Present or Absent

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 23.—The Star says that it is likely that "Kaiser trial" will be held, even if the defendant is not secured from Holland. It points out that such a source would embarrass no one.

The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at The Hague reports that Dutch public opinion hopes that Germany will ask for the ex-Kaiser's extradition so that the allies will have to make the request for the ex-Crown Prince direct to Germany.

SIX PETITIONS FOR DIVORCE AT DEDHAM

Six petitions for divorce were filed today in the Norfolk Superior Court, at Dedham.

Mrs. Arlene G. Robertson, of Toronto, sues Frank J. Robertson of Brookline, charging desertion. She asks for the right to resume her maiden name of Rose and asks alimony. They were married at Toledo, Nov. 12, 1911.

Mrs. Ethel M. Sargent of Boston sues Nathaniel H. Sargent of Brookline, charging cruel and abusive treatment January 15, 1915. They were married August 14, 1911.

Everett L. Donyon of Wellesley sues Pauline D. Donyon, also of Wellesley, charging cruel and abusive treatment on September 15, 1917. They were married in Kennebunk, Me., June 7, 1912.

Another Brookline resident, Chester E. Hall, asks for a divorce from his wife, Maria C. Hall, who lives in Brookline, because she treated him cruelly and abusively on June 14, 1919, their wedding day.

Jason B. Baker of Norfolk sues Lillian G. Baker, his wife, at present living at St. Johnsbury, Vt. Desertion is the reason Baker wishes to be single again. They were married at North Attleboro on March 18, 1908.

Eva M. Hakala of Quincy sues William M. Hakala of Quincy, charging cruel and abusive treatment and neglect to provide. They were married June 18, 1917.

20 FLEE FIRE IN WEST END APARTMENT

Fire in a front room on the third floor of the apartment house at No. 6 Hancock street early today caused considerable excitement for a few minutes and twenty occupants of the house were forced to vacate the upper floors and make hasts to the first floor when the smoke threatened to drive them out by the fire exit.

The blaze was discovered by Patrolman E. J. Graham of the Joy Street Station. The officer rushed into the house after he had broken the front door window to unlatch the door and warned the occupants of the danger.

In searching the smoked-filled rooms on the third and fourth floors Graham became choked up from the smoke and was in a weakened condition when he reached the street.

CHARGED WITH BREAKING SEAL ON FREIGHT CAR

Francis Mullen, sixteen, of West Ninth street, South Boston, was today arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, charged with breaking the seal on a freight car containing an interstate shipment. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 for a hearing Monday. According to agents of the Railroad Administration, Mullen was one of a number of youths who on Sunday, January 11, attempted to break open a car in the South Boston yard. One of the agents fired four shots, one of which took effect in young Mullen's leg. He was released from the City Hospital Sunday and arrested today.

Late Cable Bulletins

LONDON—Premier Lloyd George is expected to make an important announcement on Russia within a week or ten days, it was learned this afternoon.

DUBLIN—Constable Finnigan, who was attacked and wounded by alleged Sinn Feiners at Thurles, died today.

PARIS—The final reply of the Jugo-Slavs to the latest proposals for a settlement of the Fiume controversy is expected to reach Paris tonight.

CUMMINGS DEFENDED BY DANIELS AGAINST BRYAN

Washington, Jan. 23.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels today came to the defense of Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in connection with the attack made upon the chairman by William Jennings Bryan, for having attended the inaugural dinner of Governor Edwards of New Jersey. "If I were chairman, I would have attended," said Secretary Daniels.

"Governor Edwards' platform meets with my approval with the exceptions of his stand on prohibition, and I can't see why that question should interfere with the Democratic national chairman attending the inaugural dinner."

HAD DRESS MADE FOR WEDDING

Chauffeur Tells of Trips of Rich Mistress and 'De Luxe' Book Swindler

Auto trips which seventy-two-year-old Mrs. Alice A. Mayo took with Colonel W. J. Hartley, the convicted "de luxe" book seller, to hotels and country taverns for luncheon, figured in the testimony in the Middlesex Probate Court today, where the petition of Henry Otis Mayo, for a conservator for his mother's $200,000 estate is being heard.

It was also testified that while Hartley was calling on Mrs. Mayo he was living at the Copley-Plaza with his wife. One witness declared Mrs. Mayo said Colonel Hartley wanted to marry her.

John J. Ingram, former chauffeur for Mrs. Mayo, told of the auto trips. He said he took Mrs. Mayo and Colonel Hartley to Sterling Inn, "Jack Adams" at Marblehead, Sunlaug Inn, and the Copley-Plaza.

TOOK ORDERS FROM WOMAN.

Under cross-examination he explained that these trips were for luncheon. Mrs. Mayo directed him where to drive, Ingram said. He never saw anything to indicate any domination of Mrs. Mayo by Hartley, and their conduct was always that of "a lady and a gentleman."

John D. Owen, auditor of the Copley-Plaza, produced records showing that Colonel W. J. Hartley and his wife were registered at that hotel. Owen said he was formerly auditor of the Hotel Breslin, New York, and Colonel Hartley and his wife lived there together.

Samuel C. Blackwood, assistant manager of the Copley-Plaza, testified that in October, 1918, Colonel Hartley asked him to reserve a room for his wife.

Mrs. Lee Stone, a neighbor, testified that Mrs. Mayo told her that Colonel Hartley wanted to marry her (Mrs. Mayo), and on another occasion showed her a dress, in which she is expected to be married.

A LETTER EVERY DAY.

Mrs. Nellie E. Sherman of Roxbury, a second cousin to Mrs. Mayo, was asked if she noticed any domination of Mrs. Mayo by anyone. She said she had.

Q—By whom? A—The man she bought her books from. She got a letter from him every day.

Q—Have you had any talk with Mrs. Mayo recently? A—Only this year, until the day before the trial. She came to my house to talk about the case.

Q—What did you advise her? A—My sister and I told her NO and try to keep the case out of court.

QUESTION OF NEUTRALITY.

Dr. Jonathan H. Edgerly, an alienist, was the last witness for the son.

Q—Dr. Edgerly, suppose you found a patient, a woman over seventy, living alone except as she entertained a man who was a convicted with a sentence in a Federal penitentiary behind him; that she trusted and believed this man, that she had forsworn all old family ties because of her infatuation for this man, that she had pledged to marry this man, and refused to be convicted that he was already married, even when irrefutable evidence of this was presented to her, and that she had faith in his integrity, innocence and honor, although knowing of his conviction. What would you say as to her mental condition? A—It would indicate that the patient's mental state was up to standard. But I should want to know more, both as to any change in habits or condition of life.

Q—Assuming that her condition and habits before this infatuation had been normal. What would that indicate to you? A—I would assume that a mental change had developed.

ASKS FOR DISMISSAL.

Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, for Mrs. Mayo, moved that the case be dismissed, when all the evidence for the petitioner was in. He declared that the petitioner had failed to show that his mother had any mind weak, and that a continuation of the case could only result in needless humiliation for Mrs. Mayo.

In arguing his motion he took a fling at "the far distance expert" who had testified adversely as to her strength of mind.

The motion was taken under advisement.

CARPENTERS EARNING $103 A WEEK IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 24.—Under present conditions of competition carpenters are now able to earn $1.25 an hour. At present the union scale is $1 an hour for a forty-four hour week.

It is possible for a carpenter to roll up a maximum of $103 a week if he works ten hours a day seven days a week which many do.

Competition among employers is not only local, however. Only recently a group of men here from Detroit and sought to raid the Chicago market of 1,000 bricklayers and 400 structural ironworkers by offering them $1.25 and $1.50 an hour.

POWHATAN NOW IN TOW OF OSSIPEE

Lady Laurier Disabled; 271 Passengers of Transport Bound for New York

A wireless received at the navy yard today stated that the 271 passengers of the disabled army transport Powhatan were in perfect comfort, the transfer to the Northern Pacific having been completed without accident.

The Canadian government steamship Lady Laurier, which had been towing the Powhatan, has been disabled herself and the U. S. S. coast guard ship Ossipee took the Powhatan in tow. They proceeded toward Halifax at four knots an hour in a driving rain storm.

The Northern Pacific is scheduled to reach New York tomorrow night.

Eleven women and eight children have been among the Powhatan's passengers, and they were obliged to share with the others at least part of the suffering from cold resulting from the flooding of the ship's engine and heating plant. The ship's kitchen was reported to be the only warm place on board, and its space was naturally limited.

With the securing of the Powhatan's towline, after two battle previous attempts, shipping men expressed belief that her greatest peril had passed and her safe arrival in port is now but a matter of time, especially as she was reported as having moderated to some extent.

Coincident with the report that the Powhatan was out of danger comes a wireless message from the La Fallice, a ship of the same class, that she is about 240 miles southeast of Halifax with pumps choked and five feet of water in the hold.

The message added that although the water was gaining it was hoped that could be made without assistance.

DEMAND CUT IN COST OF RUNNING PRISONS

Reduction of the cost of maintaining State and county prisons was suggested in a petition presented to the Legislature by the Massachusetts Prison Association. Members of the association declared that the population of these institutions has been greatly reduced. They asked for the creation of a commission to obtain greater economy and increased efficiency. J. G. Thorp is president. The vice-presidents are: Joseph Lee and Richard M. Bull; secretary, Mrs. Francis Gray; assistant secretary, Warren F. Spalding. The directors are Rev. Frederick D. Allen, Sanford Bates, Jr., J. Richard Carter, Allison G. Catherion, Robert M. Gregory, Rev. Edward Cummings, Mrs. Francis Gray, George M. Hess, D. John Koren, Miss Ellen F. Mason, Edwin Mulready, Thomas C. O'Brien, Herbert M. Sharp, Joseph G. Thorp and P. Loring Young.

PRIESTS TRANSFERRED BY CARDINAL O'CONNELL

The Rev. Dominick F. Rock, a curate in the parish of Our Lady of Grace, Chelsea-Everett, for the last four years, has been transferred to the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Cambridge, where he will serve as an assistant to the Rev. John Butler, pastor.

The Rev. John Stinson, who has been attached to St. Joseph's Church in Amesbury, has been assigned by Cardinal O'Connell to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of the Rev. Father Rock.

CLANCEY SLAYER DANCED AFTER CRIME

where he lived. They have questioned the other occupants of the house, but to no avail. Not one of them will volunteer the man's name.

It is hoped that the girl in question, whose identity is being withheld and who is respectable to the highest degree, will be able to identify pictures of the man in the Rogue's Gallery.

Traffic Officer Fallon, who was at the dance with his wife and sister, is helping in the hunt. Fallon was diverted from the hunt for the murderer right at the instant when his wife fainted. She had heard the report of the shot and saw Clancey stagger and fall. When Fallon turned to the hunt the murderer had escaped.

A fifteen-year-old Italian girl has been found whom the police believe will be able to aid them in their quest of the murderer. She was brought to police headquarters for questioning by Superintendent Crowley and Chief Inspector McCarr.

Anyone who has knowledge of Clancey's slayer which would aid the police, even though this knowledge consist only of a description of the murderer, is on duty to aid justice by keeping silent, but is committing a crime against the young wife and three-year-old baby now speeding towards this city from Liverpool in the expectation of meeting the young husband and father, unconscious that he has been foully slain.

The Boston American appeals to anyone having any knowledge of the case, or even a good description of the slayer, to aid the cause of justice by communicating this knowledge to the police. Until the slayer of Patrolman Clancey is found, the suspicion of aiding his continued avoidance of the police rests on one in Roughan Hall at the time of the shooting.

A West End girl, said to have assisted in the escape from Roughan Hall of the murderer, was sought by the police today.

After the fatal shot was fired at ship's war hero, this woman resumed dancing with the murderer, according to the police, enabling him to reach the door and thus make a getaway.

The police believe that when found she can be forced to rend the veil of mystery surrounding the fatal shrouds those who were present at the dance when the shooting occurred.

The girl also made her escape before Patrolman De Prance, who attended as a patron, held up the dancers at the point of a revolver, and forced them to remain until more police arrived.

Other attempts to learn the identity of the murderer were made by the police today, who questioned two girls at a house in the West End. They also tried to trace the ownership of the murder pistol, which was found under a radiator in the hall, through its number.

The two girls were found at the home of a youth who has a police record and whom the police want in question as to his whereabouts at the time of the shooting. The youth was absent from the address they were today compiling the city for him.

Although the girls were questioned at considerable length, nothing was obtained from them which would aid the police in their search for the slayer. They admitted being present at the dance, but denied having seen the man who shot Clancey or knowing anything about him.

More pathos is added to the tragedy by the fact that the dead hero's girl wife and their three-year-old son, who are now on the way bound for Boston and is ignorance of his death, will not be able to even to attend his funeral.

The funeral of the murdered patrolman will be held from the home of an aunt on Brook road, Ipswich, Sunday morning at 9. The body will be taken to the quarters of the American Legion post in Ipswich, where it will lie in state until 1 p. m. It will then be taken to St. Joseph's Church for funeral services. A police detail, headed by Captain Patrick F. Kinn, will act as a guard of honor. It will consist of a sergeant and sixteen patrolmen. Burial will be in a nearby cemetery.

Among those who are grief-stricken over his death are his aged father and sister, from whose home he will be buried.

PAPER PROFITEERS MAY INVOLVE U. S.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 23.—Two profiteering paper mills in Canada may possibly, through their defiance of the Canadian law and government, get this country into serious trouble with the United States, according to Ottawa Journal. "There ought to be some way of putting the responsible men into a penitentiary, at least where they are Canadians. The Fort Francis mill is owned by Americans. As regards the International, a possible solution would be the expropriation of the recalcitrant mills by the Dominion government. The government would make money," the article adds.

OBJECT TO EMBARGO ON GRAIN SHIPMENTS

William H. Chandler, chairman of the transportation bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, and Albert K. Tapper, chairman of the transportation bureau of the Grain Board, sent telegrams today to Washington protesting the embargo on grain and grain products east of Buffalo. The Boston men said that the embargo was causing a serious shortage of grains and stock feeds in New England, which might cripple the dairy industry. They asked that cars be assigned at once to carry grains to New England points.

SKEFFINGTON DEMANDS $10,000 BAIL FOR 'REDS'

Commissioner of Immigration Henry J. Skeffington announced today that bail to the amount of $10,000 each would be required in the cases of two of the "Reds" confined at Deer Island, and that $5,000 each would be required to effect the release of eighteen others. He would not divulge the names of the men for whose temporary release the extra bail bonds will be demanded, but intimated that they were leaders in additionary practices during the war. Only $1,000 bonds have been demanded of the score or more who have been released up to this time.

Hearings scheduled for today in the United States District Court on habeas corpus petitions brought in behalf of alleged "Reds" confined at Deer Island were postponed until next Tuesday. One petition was brought by Katherina Chapman for Mrs. Amy Colyer and the other by Antoinette Wonlkow in behalf of 107 of the prisoners.

MRS. LEATHERBEE URGES WAR ON RATS IN BOSTON

Fourteen points on how to exterminate rats and prevent the spread of bubonic plague in this country were made today by Mrs. Albert T. Leatherbee of the Women's Municipal League before Health Commissioner William C. Woodward at a hearing in City Hall Annex. Pointing out that rats cause large property losses every year by destroying material and causing fires, the league recommended the following measures, among others: That rubbish shall not be allowed to accumulate in yards, and loose materials stored there shall be on platforms two feet above the ground; that basement windows and other openings shall be screened and bulkheads closed when not in use; that all food products kept for sale shall be thoroughly protected against rats.

BOSTON VESSEL WRECKED; FIVE MEN MISSING

The Boston schooner Gortiania has been wrecked and five of the seven officers and men on the vessel are missing.

The vessel was under Greek registry, but was owned by George F. Anastos, No. 278 Hanover street, and was in command of Captain G. Papageorge.

A broadcast wireless from an unknown steamer reported that the mate and cook of the Gortiania had been picked up.

The vessel was wrecked off Bermuda and drifted on to the coral reefs. Later she was towed into St. Georges harbor, her cargo of lumber keeping her afloat.

The Gortiania was formerly the three-master Susan N. Pickering, built at Belfast in 1892, and for many years in the lumber trade between Boston and Southern ports. She sailed from Charleston with 337,000 feet of lumber on January 9 for Huelva, Spain. The crew was shipped in the South.

The loss on vessel and cargo is estimated at $63,000. While the cargo was valued at only $20,000, the owners were to receive $10,000 for the voyage, and this item was covered by insurance.

GRADUATES GO BACK TO AMHERST AS 'TEACHERS'

Amherst, Jan. 23.—Alumni of the Massachusetts Agricultural College today replaced many professors in the classrooms as a part of the annual alumni day program. Myron Hazen, '10, president of the Consolidated Fertilizer Company of New York, addressed the classes in agronomy, and Carlton C. Gewdy, '08, told of his experiences in "bug chasing" in British East Africa, where he has been government entomologist. Other speakers were H. F. Thompson, '05, head of the Market Field station at Lexington; George Frew, '97, manager of Conyer's farm, Greenwich, Ct.; Howard P. Gillett, president of the Pittsfield poultry farm, Hollister; M. J. McNamara, '12, manager of the Producers' Dairy Company, Brockton.

BLUE TRIANGLE GREETS 'JACK FROST' TONIGHT

This evening snow and frost will be seen not only outdoors, but also at the Mid-Winter Carnival of the Blue Triangle Club in Mechanics Building. Esquimo huts, a real Jack Frost, snow balls, snow men, roller skating, a Winter farce and appropriate Winter refreshments—these will be the unique features of a gay evening. The Quartermaster's Club will have charge of a Winter booth, with snowy things on sale. The program is in charge of Miss Margaret Pilling, recreation director at the Blue Triangle. The Quartermaster's booth sale will be directed by Miss Georgia Blum, president of that club.

ACCUSE PALMER OF COWARDICE ON SEDITION

Labor Counsel and Congressman Criticize Attorney-General; He Denies Charges

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Attorney-General Palmer was accused today of having "surrendered in full and run" from the Sterling and Graham "anti-sedition bills," by Jackson H. Ralston of counsel for the American Federation of Labor.

Palmer today said it was an entirely erroneous impression that he did not wish the Sterling or Graham "Anti-Red" bills enacted by Congress.

"I never intended to create the impression that I did not want these measures enacted," the attorney-general said. "At the request of Senator Polander I went up to Congress on the draft of a measure which I thought would be effective in dealing with the agitation. This was some time before the Sterling bill was introduced in the Senate or the Graham bill in the House.

"I wish the impression corrected that I have withdrawn my support from either of these bills," the Attorney-General added.

"I would like to know why the Attorney-General has failed to appear before us," Representative Rodenberg of Illinois said at the outset of today's hearings of the House Rules Committee.

"COLD FEET" SAYS CAMPBELL.

"I am unable to offer any explanation of the attorney-general's action," Representative Campbell replied. "On Monday he expressed a desire to me that he be heard and that he be allowed to appear before this committee."

"I do not wish to impugn the attorney-general's motives, but it seems to me he has gotten a plain case of cold feet," was Rodenberg's rejoinder.

Captain Swinburne Hale of New York city, who said he was formerly of the army intelligence, testified newspapermen were "planted" by the New York district attorney's office to "frame up" having been found in a raid on the "Union of Russian Workers" at No. 32 East 15th street. Hale admitted he had received the information second hand.

DENOUNCED BOLSHEVISTS.

Hale denied "bomb throwing" was advocated by Russians in this country. He said a "paranoiac" might be found among anarchists or any other class, but that was given to bombs, but it was the exception and not the rule. He was also a witness for the Russian Bolsheviki in New York city, he added.

John Moore, who described himself as an engineer of New York city, charged Department of Justice agents had "framed" the New York police in "oppressive measures" directed against the Russian Soviets and "no-good 'Red' headquarters. He declared a "reaction" was setting in and Attorney-General Palmer cited the case of the Socialist members of the New York assembly that is an example of what he believes to be persecution "of those seeking freedom of speech and action."

BAKLANOFF HEARD BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Chicago, Jan. 23.—George Baklanoff, Russian baritone of the Chicago Opera Company, arrested on complaint of Vera Amsar, grand opera contralto, was given a hearing before Howard Ebey, Assistant Immigration Inspector, here, today. Baklanoff, it is said, deserted his wife and three children in Russia and brought her to Chicago. Immigration Inspector, she said, until he tired of her a few weeks ago.

The hearing was conducted behind closed doors. Record of Baklanoff's testimony will be sent to Washington where Immigration Department will decide whether the baritone shall be deported as an undesirable alien.

DANIELS' VICE BOARD AT WORK IN NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Jan. 23.—Secretary Daniels' board to inquire into vice conditions in Newport met on Cosiers' Harbor Island. The board consists of Rear-Admiral Herbert O. Dunn, commandant of the First Naval District; Captain John Hines and Captain David E. Thelsen, with Ensign Henry I. Hynman as recorder. The board is simply formulating its plans for procedure. The Ministers' Union continues firm in the belief that the hearing will be of no useful purpose so far as revealing the information it is in search of, for, after all, it is only who gave the order to authorize boys to act as detectives."

BOY SCOUTS WILL HELP FEED BIRDS

Arrangements were made today by Scout Executive Harvey H. Hazen of Arlington whereby the local Boy Scouts will take feed into the woods for the birds who are starving, following the recent deep snows which have covered up their natural food supplies. Some feed has been provided by the State and this is being set out where the birds usually feed. Residents are asked to throw out bread crumbs and scraps for the birds while snow is on the ground.

LADY ASTOR'S PUBLIC GOWNS ENDORSED BY FRENCHWOMEN

Paris, Jan. 23.—French women have universally endorsed the decision of Lady Astor, first woman member of the British Parliament, to wear only the most severe tailored costumes while attending legislative sessions.

Mademoiselle Cecile Sorel, the most beautiful woman on the French stage, has announced that when the French Senate endorses the vote of the Chamber of Deputies accepting women full suffrage only the soberest tailored costumes will be tolerated.

"There is no reason," says Mlle. Sorel, "why women should seek to increase their power in the councils of the nation by affecting sumptuous and extravagant dress. The tone of the attire should accord with the sobre duties upon which the wearer is engaged."

RICH WOMEN TO SEND WIVES OF 'REDS' HOME

Expected to Go on Ship Carrying Medicine and Milk to Russian Children

Washington, Jan. 23.—A sister ship to the Buford, otherwise known as the "Soviet ark," may shortly be given clearance papers. It was learned today, to carry back to Russia the wives and children of Russians arrested and deported as "Reds."

The Women's Emergency Committee, composed of Mrs. Willard Straight, Mrs. Vanderlip and other wealthy New York women has raised a fund for the purpose of sending a relief ship carrying medicine and milk to the needy children of Petrograd and Moscow.

After conferences with officials here its representative has been told that nothing would be put in the way of the ship sailing. The committee then asked if several hundred destitute Russian women and children now in its charge in this country might return to Russia aboard the relief ship and was told that passports would be granted if the committee so desired.

The committee, it is understood, will pay the expenses of chartering the ship and supplies which it will carry.

EXPORTS RECORD BRBOKEN TOTAL $7,922,000,000

Washington, Jan. 23.—The excess of American exports over imports in 1919 amounted to $4,017,000,000, a new record, the Department of Commerce announced this afternoon. Exports in 1919 amounted to $7,922,000,000 as against $6,149,000,000 in 1918. Imports in 1919 amounted to $3,904,000,000 as compared with $3,021,000,000 in 1914. Imports of gold in 1919 amounted to $77,000,000 compared with $63,000,000 in 1918. Exports of gold in 1919 amounted to $385,000,000, while in 1918 they were only $41,000,000.

WIDOW DEFENDS HER RELATIONS WITH FELLOWS

Mrs. Butler, Sued for Alienation, Denies Stopping With Him at Hotel

Saco, Me., Jan. 23.—Mrs. Mollie Butler, the pretty, vivacious widow of Berwick, defendant in the $50,000 alienation of affection suit brought by Mrs. Mabel L. Fellows and being tried in the Supreme Court in this city, on the witness stand today declared that her relations with William E. Fellows, husband of the plaintiff, were wholly platonic.

The courtroom in Saco City Hall was crowded and interest centred in the woman who has thus far borne the brunt of the charges which Mrs. Fellows has made.

Her name was called as the second witness for the defence.

Mrs. Butler testified that there had been nothing improper in her relations with Mr. Fellows, who conducts an automobile agency in Berwick. She declared that Fellows had sold her a car, and that the only time she had been with him was while he was demonstrating the automobile and teaching her to run it. She denied that she had ever stopped at a Boston hotel with Fellows.

Mrs. Lois Wilcox Smith, who preceded Mrs. Butler, asserted on the witness stand that she had accompanied Mrs. Butler to Boston at the time the plaintiff alleged the defendant had made the visit with Mr. Fellows.

Because of the prominence of all the parties to the suit, the case has attracted widespread attention.

Mrs. Fellows, in her testimony and complaint, charges that her husband has neglected her and that the time he should have spent with her he devoted to Mrs. Butler.

FOX CLUB CAN'T FIND ANYTHING TO HUNT

Lexington, Jan. 23.—Chances of a Winter meet for the new England Fox Hunter's Club, which will be given an event for the pass fifteen seasons, look bad, as the club officials have been unable to secure a suitable location for the hunt. Bedford has always been the scene of the Winter hunts, but foxes are now scarce in that section. The club may hold its meet the second part of next month. In the past it has always taken place in January. The club does not hunt officially after February 15.

PUPILS DRESS BROKEN ARM OF TEACHER

Miss Mary Morse, principal of the Parrot school in Lynn, today proved the value of her teaching of first aid when two of the pupils bandaged her broken arm after she fell on the school steps. The two children, a boy and a girl, applied first aid knowledge and made temporary bandages to reduce the fracture. Miss Morse, after treatment, was sent to her home, No. 49 Lawton Street avenue.

WEST END CHILDREN WILL ATTEND THEATRE

All plans are complete for the second assembly of the West End children and their friends, to be held under the auspices of the Catholic Italian Civic League and other community clubs at the Lancaster Theatre tomorrow morning. The doors open at 9:30 o'clock and the program begins at 10. This activity is an educational, charitable and recreational movement purely.

FREEMAN'S DAUGHTER REFERRED TO FATHER AS "DEAREST OLD TOP"

fute the girl's testimony that although her father had asked her to spy upon her mother she had refused to do so. Many of the letters introduced were written from Florida, where the girl was staying with her mother.

Q.—Are these expressions of love and affection for your father sincere? A.—Those that were written last year were not sincere, but the ones written before that were at least more sincere.

In some of the letters the girl had stated that her mother was "sorrowful and thoughtful."

Q.—Was this actually the fact? A.—Not always.

Q.—Isn't it true that sometimes when you said she was sorrowful and thoughtful, the truth was that she was gay and happy? A.—Yes, that is true.

In one letter Sally had told of going swimming at the beach and of going into the pool. She wrote:

"Mother was too modest to enter the pool, but she didn't mind a couple of young men standing around there, I noticed."

Referring to her testimony yesterday that she had declined to spy upon her mother, counsel read a passage from one letter to her father, as follows:

"I'll have to stop writing now, as mother is coming in, and she may insist on reading this. You must be careful, too, what you write, because mother might read the letter."

Questioned by Attorney Thomas Hunt: "Sally, you have often seen your mother write letters, haven't you?" A.—Yes.

Q.—You have received many letters from her her? A.—Yes.

Q.—Can you remember what servants your mother had in the house while you were at Dedham? A.—No.

Q.—Did you go to Atlantic City with your mother last Spring? A.—Not last Spring. It was the year before.

Q.—Did you go with your mother to the postoffice at Atlantic City? A.—I don't remember that mother went to the postoffice.

Q.—Did you go? A.—No.

Q.—You have written to your father when you have been away from home, A.—Yes.

"DEAREST OLD TOP."

Sally identified a number of letters written by her to her father. In one of these she called him "Dearest Old Top," and in another one she calls him "Dear Pa," and "Old Top." She calls herself "Silly" instead of "Sally." One of the letters read:

"This is my fond farewell for a while. Mother is worried and inclined to put on a little laughter, just to make us feel like going. I could not say much over the phone, as mother was in the hall and might have come in. I always knew that I loved you, but I never knew how much I loved you until you said good bye. Mother is calling me, and I must not make her mad or she might go to Santa Fe. Don't tip your hat to any pretty girls. Many hugs and kisses." The letter was signed "Silly."

Q.—Did you want to go South, Sally? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why did you write, "she is inclined to put on a little laughter, I think, to make us feel like going"? A.—I wrote it for something to say, I guess.

Q.—Were you afraid when you wrote this letter that your mother might see it? A.—No, I didn't care.

Q.—Were you honest and sincere, Sally, when you wrote your father that you never know how much you loved him until he said good-by? A.—If that was last year I wrote that letter, I am afraid I was not sincere.

Q.—Well, if it was written on the year before, you might have been sincere? A.—Yes, or more so anyway than last year.

"FOND OF PRETTY GIRLS."

Q.—What did you mean by this: "Don't tip your hat to any pretty girls"? A.—Well, I knew father was very fond of pretty girls.

Q.—What made you think that? A.—He talked about them more or less.

Q.—Did you ever hear your mother talk to him about them? A.—No.

Continuing the questioning on the "pretty girl incident," Sally said she remembered father being twitted some about a Miss Thayer, she said. "And a Miss Ward, too?" asked Attorney Hunt. "Yes," replied Sally.

In one letter Sally said to her father, "I will stand by you when Aunt Florence and mother brings it up." "What do you mean by it," she was asked. "I do not remember what I meant when I wrote it," she replied.

Q.—What had your aunt and mother said about your father? A.—Nothing.

Another letter said in part: "Dear Pa—just a line before I go down. We went bathing and then into the pool. Ma didn't go into the pool because she was too modest. There are a lot of young fellows here, but ma didn't care for them. Mother is thoughtful and worried. Mother insists on reading Ruth's and my letters from you. So be careful what you write."

Q.—What did you mean by that? A.—I don't know.

Q.—You felt quite friendly toward your father then, didn't you? A.—No more so than now.

Q.—Didn't you want to caution him about what he wrote, for fear your mother might see it A.—No.

"DIDN'T CARE," SHE SAYS.

Q.—What did you mean, then, by a phrase further along in the letter, saying you were in a hurry to finish the letter before your mother came? A.—I didn't care whether she saw it or not.

Q.—You said also further along that you would be perfectly content if father and the babies were with you. A.—I meant the last part about the babies being with us, but not about father.

Q.—Were you in the habit of being dishonest and making dishonest statements to your father and mother? A.—Not to mother.

Q.—But you were to your father. A.—Sometimes.

Q.—So when you wrote that your mother was worried and thoughtful, it probably meant that she was gay and laughing actually? A.—I guess so.

Q.—Did you think it was wrong to write falsehoods to your father? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did you keep that up? A.—I don't know.

"HUGS AND KISSES."

At the end of this letter, Sally had written four lines of x's and other marks, which she explained were hugs and kisses. Sally's next letter to her father was from the Biltmore, New York city. Part of the letter read as follows:

"Dear Father, I will tell you what I want for my birthday. We went to a jeweler's and Aunt Alice got a diamond ring watch. That is just what I want, or else a diamond bracelet, a ring. We saw the biggest diamond in the world in the store. You can spend money in New York all right. I've got $5.50; but you can't buy much with that. I was to hope that I'd see Rockefeller, so I could ask him to help the poor. I must get dressed now as mother is waiting."

Margaret McCluskey, a domestic employed by the Freemans for three years, testified that she heard Freeman call his wife a "gutter woman" and other epithets. She heard him make these remarks before the children, she said. On at least two occasions she said she saw Freeman seize his wife by the throat and throw her against the wall. The domestic testified she saw the marks of bruises on Mrs. Freeman's right shoulder after a struggle.

All of these statements were made under examination by Attorney Hall, of counsel for Mrs. Freeman. In his cross-examination, Attorney Hunt for Freeman, attempted to show by the witnesses' testimony that the alleged acts all took place after Mrs. Freeman had been to Benner's hospital. Miss McCluskey, by her answers, didn't show whether or not these acts had been committed before Mrs. Freeman went to the hospital.

Q.—You heard Mr. Freeman use vile language to his wife? A.—Yes.

Q.—Many times? A.—Yes.

DECLINES TO REPEAT WORDS.

Witness refused to repeat the language.

Finally she testified Freeman was profuse a good many times.

Q.—Anything else? A.—Yes, he called her a gutter woman and a—

Q.—Did he use this language in front of the children? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many times? A.—Several times.

Q.—Did you ever hear Mrs. Freeman swear? A.—I never did.

Q.—What was her conduct with the children? A.—Good.

Mrs Margaret A. Pelton, nurse, testified that Freeman refused food prepared by Mrs. Freeman when he was ill.

While refusing the food he said: "I told you to get out of this room —get out." After she had gone, Freeman told Mrs. Pelton that he would not eat food prepared by his wife, as he was afraid she would poison him. Noon recess was then taken.

SUBWAY IS TIED UP TWICE IN RUSH HOUR

All traffic in the Boylston street subway was held up twice within an hour during the early rush today and thousands of persons were delayed in reaching their places of business. The first blockade was between Copley and Boylston stations.

A trolley pole of one of the cars jumped the feed wire between those points at 7:25 a. m. and became entangled in other overhead wiring. It was not released until 7:40 a. m.

Meantime a large number of both inbound and outbound cars were stalled because of the tie-up and were compelled to move slowly through that part of the subway until regular service could be resumed.

Again at 8:18, the service was brought to a stop by a disabled car. A short circuit at the powerhouse put a car out of commission, and another fifteen-minute tieup resulted.

When the cars were again moving, the jam at Park street was suffocating. Fully 200 persons attempted to board the first car leaving the NOTES.

Ocean forecast: Steamships leaving Boston and New York today and Saturday for Europe will have moderate to fresh northerly winds and rain or snow to the Grand Banks. The lake built tug Bison arrived at Boston today from Sturgeon Bay, Wis., where she was built, for delivery to the Shipping Board. The Bison was the last vessel to leave the Lakes before ice closed the St. Lawrence to navigation. She stopped at Quebec, Port Hastings, Canso, Halifax and Yarmouth, N. S. The Shipping Board steamer Arlington, which grounded on a shoal in Nantucket Sound yesterday, and was later floated, arrived here today. Captain Ricker said in absence of channel buoys, carried away by the ice floes, was responsible for the grounding. She brings 2,500 tons of coal for Norfolk.

ISOLATION HAS PASSED, SAYS BISHOP

U. S. and Canada Have No Cause to Whine, Declares Dr. Hughes

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 23.—Declaring that the time had passed when the people of Canada or the United States could lead isolated lives, Bishop E. H. Hughes of Boston, speaking here, said he was unreservedly in favor of the League of Nations, unamended and without reservation.

Whatever action the United States Senate takes, he said, the growing feeling of internationalism that is sweeping like a wave over the world cannot be prevented. The statement sometimes made that Canada and the United States were poorer because of the war he described as "one of the war time fallacies foisted on the public." He said:

"When a shell exploded in France, the actual money for the manufacture of the shell remained in the country in which it was made. The greatest loss in the war was the lives that had been wiped out, and next was the scores in France and Belgium laid to ruin.

"If any two governments on the face of the earth have less cause to whine than the Canadian and United States, I would like to know of them.

"Statistics prove that never in history were our people so wealthy as at present."

He strongly criticised the stand in the States against the League of Nations.

"The man who lives only in Ottawa is a mighty little fellow," he said, "and the man who lives only in the United States is losing one of the greatest chances that God ever gave him."

He spoke of the reckless extravagance of the present day as a reaction after the war. While he did not wish to put "hot boxes on the wheels of the world's progress," he was afraid the automobile and the moving picture were becoming too absorbing.

Speaking of the long delay in the United States' participation in the war, he said:

"I give it to you as my confident idea that if the people of the United States had thought it necessary in order that the allies might win they would have been in it much sooner."

EAST BOSTON BOY WEEK MISSING

Search is being made for fifteen-year-old Alfred Edmund Curtis of No. 52 Bisbee street, East Boston, a pupil in the second year of the Boston English High School, who disappeared last Saturday afternoon. He is the son of one of the striking police officers, and is the second oldest of nine children.

The boy worked, when not attending school, for George L. Ware, the broker, of No. 89 Congress street. He left the office of Mr. Ware at 2 o'clock Saturday with $6 in his pockets and has not been seen since. It is thought that he might have gone to New York in an attempt to get a place with a brokerage concern. He is an accomplished musician, singing at the Star of the Sea Church, as well as being proficient on the violin and piano.

When last seen he wore a gray flannel suit, a brown plaid mackinaw coat, a black and white checked cap and tan shoes. He is about five feet, seven inches tall, weighs about 110 pounds, has dark hair and dark brown eyes.

His mother, whose health is delicate, is on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

POLAND READY TO FIGHT 'RED' FORCES

Berlin, Jan. 23.—"Poland is ready to fight the Soviet army," declared Premier Skulski, M. Paderewski's successor at Warsaw, in a telegram to the Berlin Bureau of the International News Service today.

The dispatch was in answer to a query as to what preparations were being made to meet the threatened Bolshevik onsive against the Poles. The telegram continued:

"In case the Bolsheviks attack Poland they will find the Polish army animated by the highest spirit of patriotism. We are well organized with considerable forces ready now to defend the Eastern boundaries. After his London conference with Premier Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau made a speech to the French Parliament announcing that the English and French governments were ready to help Poland in every possible way 'in this war against the Bolsheviks.'

"During the year of her independence Poland not only introduced a quiet, formal parliamentary administration without riot, but also prevented the Bolsheviks from coming westward to invade the country. And this was done despite the fact that the Bolsheviks were our neighbors.

"We expected from the United States in the future the same cordial feeling towards the independent Polish state as she showed in the past and for which the Polish nation is and always will be thankful.

"Poland needs America's help. Our war ministry wishes arms and clothing from the United States, our food ministry requires corn, fats and frozen meats; our ministry of commerce wants raw materials and cotton and the finance ministry seeks to interest American in credits."

105 CASES DISPOSED OF IN THE ROXBURY COURT

It was a busy day for Judge Hayden in the Roxbury court today. There were 105 cases on the docket, necessitating two sessions of the court. Among the cases are a large number of auto violations. Today thirty-seven men were found guilty of violating a law which requires reflectors on all auto trucks. They paid fines of $5 each. In the same court Frank Wise of Cabot street, Roxbury, charged with stealing property valued at $16 from Joseph Banks of No. 121 Cabot street, Judge Hayden found him guilty. He was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. Sentence was suspended and Wise was given time to make restitution.

5 DISSENT ON TRIAL OF N. Y. SOCIALISTS

Disapprove of Chairman Martin's Ruling Against Hillquit's Motions

By International News Service.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23.—The intense bitterness of the fight in the New York State Assembly to remove from its midst five Socialist members has now extended into the membership of the Judiciary Committee itself, which is hearing evidence against the Socialists.

Five or more of the thirteen members have expressed themselves in secret sessions of the Judiciary Committee as against the decisions which have been made by Chairman Martin against the various motions of Morris Hillquit, attorney for the Socialists, and when adjournment was taken last night several of the rebellious members of the committee were preparing to make themselves heard when the hearing is resumed next Tuesday.

William Evans, Democrat, from New York city; Maurice Bloch, Democrat, and William W. Pellet, Republican, all lawyers, have been decidedly rebellious in the committee's secret conferences and it is around them that the growing opposition to the action of the assembly many centers.

Mr. Evans, in an interview shortly before he took a train for New York, spoke with energy of the situation. "It's perfectly safe to say that a fight is likely to be made against what's been done in this Socialist affair in Albany," he declared.

"This thing is too strong. We're not going at it in the right way. If we must try these men we ought to at least try them fairly, though I insist that we have no right to try them or to remove them."

TICKLISH SITUATION.

"There's a lot of feeling inside the judiciary committee against what's being done. We've heard some pretty plain talk from some of our members. But you see it's a very ticklish situation. Any man who gets up and raises his voice against the thing is likely to be charged with standing up for Socialism. I'm not a Socialist, as everybody knows, neither are any other members of the judiciary committee, but it would be so dangerous to have the Socialist charge grow up against a man that some of us are going pretty slowly in open opposition to the Assembly.

"But, if things keep on next week the way they went last week, it will become so plain to the public what is being done at Albany that some of us there can raise our voices and the public will understand what we are talking about, and will not think we have gone over to the Socialist cause.

"I've talked with several members of the judiciary committee about declaring ourselves against the proceedings or at least against the way in which they are being conducted and I think several of them will be ready to join in an opposition or protest to some sort next week, if things keep on this way."

HILLQUIT NEEDS REST.

The temporary retirement of Morris Hillquit from the hearing is due, it is said, to his poor health. Seymour Stedman, who next week will take Hillquit's place at the head of counsel for the socialists, today said:

"Mr. Hillquit must go back to Saranac Lake for a week's rest. He has been fighting tuberculosis there for almost two years and he came here against the advice of his doctors. It is not true that he is leaving because of treatment that we have received from the committee, but solely because he must take at least one week's rest at Saranac, and give his doctors a chance to look him over after his two weeks' fight here at Albany."

REVERE ELKS WILL HONOR WAR HEROES

One hundred members of the Revere Lodge of Elks who saw service in the world war will be guests of honor at a banquet and reception Saturday evening. Other invited guests include Governor Coolidge and staff, General Clarence R. Edwards, Rear Admiral Robinson, U. S. N., Mayor Roscoe Walaworth of Revere, and commanding officers of various military organizations. Frank P. Sibley, war correspondent, will speak.

In honor of John Mooney, the only member of the lodge to lose his life in the war, a memorial tablet on the outside of the building will be unveiled. A drive is on foot to raise the mortgage on the lodge building. The committee in charge of the banquet includes William H. O'Neil, chairman, Francis J. Campbell, Cornelius F. Ahearn, Exalted Ruler; Wendell P. Murray, William L. O'Brien, William Kelley and Harry E. Rice.

The tablet committee consists of Frank A. Menard, Eugene J. Lakemarsin and Maffit Flaherty.

Y. D. CLUBHOUSE DRIVE REACHES ITS OBJECTIVE

The Y. D. offensive has reached its objective. Charles H. Cole and Willard E. Luther, officials of the campaign, report $195,000 has been received and the $5,000 needed will be received from sources where the drive is not as yet completed.

In a statement issued by the officials of the drive, subscribers and volunteer workers are thanked for their generous support. The statement containing this tribute to those relative of Y. D. dead, who subscribed to the fund:

"A larger debt remains unpaid, one for which words must prove inadequate; to the many wives and mothers and fathers who forever gave their husbands and sons and yet who rejoiced to give again to their luckier comrades their contributions and their support, only silence can convey our full gratitude and affection."

VETERANS PROTEST TO MAYOR ON BRENNAN

Resolutions protesting against the appointment of ex-Senator James H. Brennan of Charlestown as secretary of the Boston Americanization Committee were unanimously adopted at a meeting of Old Dorchester Post, American Legion, held in Arcadia Hall. The resolutions, introduced by Lieutenant Bernard F. Carroll, charge that Brennan is "without the necessary two-fisted qualifications," and that during the war "he managed to escape active military service because of political activities." The post asks Mayor Peters to rescind the appointment and appoint a war veteran in his place.

POINT WON IN PEAKES' FIGHT FOR LIBERTY

Mrs. Charles E. Peakes of Wasten today won the first step in her fight for the pardon of her husband from State Prison when Governor Coolidge decided to refer the petition to the State Board of Parole for a thorough investigation.

Mrs. Peakes made her plea to Governor Coolidge today. She was accompanied by a delegation of prominent women of Weston, Waltham and Wellesley, including Mrs. Ella A. Gleason, president of the Massachusetts branch Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

It became known today that the old Parole Board, which recently departed office, voted two to one in favor of a parole for Peakes.

Peakes was sentenced a year ago to serve from four to seven years in State prison for larceny and forgery from T. E. Aiteaux of Boston, a dealer in mill supplies.

Mrs. Peakes asserted yesterday and today repeated the assertion to Governor Coolidge that Peakes "was the victim of a conspiracy to save another."

The old board of parole which was abolished by the consolidation act merging the 100 State boards in twenty departments, consisted of Frank A. Brooks of Williamsburn, Richard J. McCormick of Haverhill and Parker D. Morris of Boston. It was said by Mrs. Peakes' friends that Morris was the member opposed to the pardon. The new board of parole consists of Mr. Brooks, who is chairman; Henry A. Higgins of Boston and George H. Wrenn of Springfield.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c.

PICKARD DODGED JURY INQUIRY IN DEAN CASE

County Solicitor Urged Inquest Instead 5 Months After, Murder Letter Shows

East Jaffrey, N. H., Jan. 22.—County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard's astounding proposal to hold a medical coroner's inquest in connection with the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean, instead of a grand jury inquiry, was set forth in a letter which he wrote to President George H. Duncan of the Jaffrey Board of Trade on February 28, 1919.

As public prosecutor for Cheshire County, Mr. Pickard should have known, say the selectmen of Jaffrey and all others interested in clearing up the Dean tragedy, that practice in a capital case should have resulted automatically in the holding of an inquest immediately after the discovery of the crime and that the next step should have been a grand jury investigation.

AUTOPSY DELAYED.

They say that Mr. Pickard had no authority to suggest a compromise. They call attention to the fact that no inquest hearing was ever held in the Dean case; that a complete autopsy was not held until the selectmen engaged Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath, the well-known Boston pathologist, and also that Mr. Pickard declined to call a grand jury to investigate the case until eight months had elapsed, and then under pressure.

The county solicitor's letter to Mr. Duncan, which speaks for itself, read as follows:

"My dear George:

"This matter here is for your own personal consideration and is in addition to the letter which I wrote to you as president of the Board of Trade. You may, if you desire, find out what the sentiment of the people of Jaffrey is with reference to a proposition I have had in mind for some time, that is, to hold a medical referee's inquest in the Dean case. (Dr. Dean was killed August 13, 1918, and Mr. Pickard's recommendation for a medical referee's inquest was not made until suggested in this letter on February 28, 1919.)

"This is not a grand jury investigation or anything of the sort. I must say that I do not see how a grand jury investigation, even if possible to have one at present would assist in clearing up this matter.

"What I think ought to be done is to have some public hearing if possible, where the people can see just what the evidence is. The trouble with this case, in my opinion, is, that the people do not really know what the evidence really is. (Mr. Pickard's critics point out that it was not necessary for the general public to know all the evidence, but it was his duty to proceed along channels.)

NO CHANCE OF INQUIRY.

"A grand jury investigation is absolutely secret and no man can reveal any particle thereof; a coroner's or medical referee's inquest is public and would be held in the town where the matter actually was heard.

"All others who know or think they know about it would be brought before the medical referee or referee for an examination and a record of all evidence will be taken. This hearing would, of course, be public, and anybody who wished to appear might do so.

"Would such a hearing as this assist at all in clearing up the atmosphere?

"I must tell you frankly that there is no chance, in my opinion, in bringing it before the grand jury for reasons which I will explain more fully later, but the idea of the medical inquest has been before me for some time. Please write me your personal views in this matter, and, if you desire, you might talk with some of those whose judgment you can rely upon.

"I am not sure that a medical referee's hearing will be had, but my present disposition is to do that, and I am trying to make arrangements which will make it certain. The time of the hearing is indefinite at present.

"Please tell me what arrangements could be made for a hall in East Jaffrey, where the people might hear the evidence, if anybody desires to do so. You will please consider this as confidential except in the matters above set out. Please let me hear from you at the earliest possible moment.

"Very truly,

(Signed) "ROY M. PICKARD."

The Selectmen, the town and practically all the taxpayers who have been fighting for eighteen months to avenge the death of Dr. Dean, call attention to the fact that although Mr. Pickard made his proposition for a public hearing, at which evidence which should not be made public unless under the due procedure of law, would be made public and that a Grand Jury inquiry was unwarranted in the case, a group of influential citizens of this town held a secret meeting when matters were getting hot for a certain suspect and agreed that a Grand Jury hearing was the best thing for the suspect, who attended the meeting.

"SOFT PEDAL SQUAD" ACTIVE.

Later, this "soft pedal squad" met County Solicitor Pickard across the line in Massachusetts at the Hotel Winchendon in Winchendon and the Federal authorities were so suspicious of the purpose of the meeting that they engaged an adjoining room and shorthand notes were made of what transpired.

These men have been fighting for a second grand jury inquiry and the arrest of certain suspects say they have never been able to explain how it was that County Solicitor Pickard could have been induced so suddenly to change his mind relative to the efficacy of a grand jury inquiry in the Dean case, which the selectmen and others claim was incomplete and unsatisfactory.

Home Wrinkle Recipe—Astonishing Results

Such startling, sensational results come from a very simple, harmless home-made wrinkle-remover, there's no excuse now for anyone wearing those hateful marks of age, illness or worry. No need fooling with worthless pastes, creams nor "skin foods" which don't feel the skin. No need rubbing, massaging, stretching—exercising methods which expand and loosen skin and unnerving them aggravating a wrinkled, flabby condition. Better cause, surely, is the scientific method following. Thousands have successfully tried it—thousands tired of wrinkles changed pasty, sagey cheeks, leathery skin—thousands younger looking, happier women.

All you need do is to dissolve one ounce of powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel, and bathe your face in this. The effect is almost magical. Even deepest crow's feet, completely, quickly vanish. Sagging, hideous lines smooth, fresh looking—tears no trace of treatment and that radiant, enhanced beauty, that these treatments ingredients at your druggist's or by mail—generous saxolite lotion today.—Advertisement.

PUBLIC IS AWAKENING TO ITS RIGHTS

CRY FOR JUSTICE BEHIND SOCIAL UNREST CURES

By RAY STANNARD BAKER.

When I was in Chicago some days ago a man with whom I was discussing the industrial problem suddenly asked:

"What are you going to do about me?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, I'm the Innocent Bystander. I'm the man who gets the brick-bat intended for one of the belligerents. I'm the Public. Whatever happens I get hurt."

I have dealth in former articles with the attitude of various groups of employers and employes toward the present industrial unrest. It is now important to consider the point of view of the "great third party." The awakening of the public to the seriousness of the present unrest, its threat to American institutions, is, in some ways, the greatest news in the whole situation.

We are in the midst of a sudden, powerful and, at present, crude reassertion of public rights. It is as though the American giant had suddenly awakened—or just returned from war overseas—and finding disorder all about, had acted with terrific force and directness. It is the American way—we may not at all approve of it, but there it is—to act first and inquire about it afterwards. I recall a saying of the early days in the north woods, when the lumbermen first went in: "Cut the trees, ask about the lines afterwards." There is much of this spirit still left in America.

So we have pounced right and left upon disturbers—with little inquiry and less understanding—tossed one handful of them back to Russia and evidently propose to toss still others. No one knows the number of thousands—or the fleet of ships required to tke them! A stupendous business! We have raided the offices and homes of both wild and tame radicals, sometimes with legal authority and sometimes without; we have choked off radical oratorst tuned out radical members of the Legislature and now propose the most sweeping and drastic legislation in the world for dealing with disturbers. One bold stroke at what seemed a threat to public rights and public ordr—the police strike at Boston—has made a presidential candidate!

DEEP INSTINCT UNDERLYING.

It is not the way they do it in England; nor yet in France; it is our way, and must be so accepted and dealt with.

It is our way; and behind it, ruthless as it is, and little as many of us can approve the methods employed, there is deep instinct that the selfish forces of cliques, groups, interests, whether of labor or capital, in American life have grown too strong, and that "there must," as one leader expressed it, "be some kind of a new deal."

The causes of the present disorder and unrest reach far back and deep down the war merely accelerated developments already under way. At the bottom lies the popular discontent, which has been growing for years, with the economic arrangements of society; a feeling that they are unjust and undemocratic; a feeling that while there have been enormous developments in machinery and business organization, the social and political structure has not kept pace with them. This feeling is not peculiar to America; it is world wide. Some one has said that the greatest invention of the "wonderful century" was not the steam engine, or the dynamo, or wireless telegraphy, but that extraordinary and potent device, unrestricted social organization.

Groups everywhere that felt oppressed, or wanted protection, or privilege, organized to get it. Capitalists organized, combined, trustified—and succeeded beyond the dreams of avarice. Labor preached and became powerful. Prohibitionists organized and dried up the country. Women organized and got the vote. Voluntary social organization has for the last twenty-five years been humanity's magic wand. It would do anything! It has built up a wonderful technique of its own. It knows how to get money, use propoganda, influence elections, force legislators. It is a wonderful tool—used sometimes for good purposes, sometimes for wholly selfish purposes.

OLD AND NEW CONTRASTED.

Consider more specifically labor organization. I remember well the little, dismal, smoky rooms over saloons that used to represent the typical labor union headquarters of twenty-five years ago. I thought of the contrast the other day when I passed the Roe Building, one of several hundred thousand dollars—built by the Street Carmen's Union of Chicago.

Once the movement demonstrated its success in improving the conditions of life for working men—and it was the only way they had—it spread like wildfire. I was amazed the other day to look at the lists of unions affiliated with one of the principal city central bodies: school teachers, actors, newspaper writers, architects, nurses. They are all coming in; policemen, postmen. The movement is even penetrating the randed atmosphere where authors and college professors are supposed to dwell.

I received a communication the other day from the Authors' League, of which I am a member, that read strangely like many a trade union document—only the pantswreakers and bod carriers have had longer experience and know better how to do it. We authors have gone at the business in our "labor union" of standardizing contracts, making better terms with our employers—the predatory and shamefully piratical publishers—and working for more pay and better living conditions.

"As a result of six years of unremitting effort," remarks this document, "the author enjoys a new standing and a greater security than at any other time in the history of the profession."

You see what our union does? We're better off than ever Shakespeare was, or Dickens or Thackeray, or Cervantes or Goethe. We're secure, we have a new standing, and organization did it!

I live in a college town, and all about are college professors. They complain bitterly of cold and hunger, and long hours of work and low pay; I hear that their living conditions are being investigated not only by the government, but by at least one Foundation. The union is the only remedy!

As I say, this tendency toward group organizations has gone to great lengths in our society. It has been a powerful centrifugal influence, disintegrating our life into thousands of small, warring groups, societies, factions—each seeking its own advancement, its own security, regardless of anything else. This has applied to both employers and employes.

A NEW SENSE ABROAD.

One reason why political life has sached such a low ebb in America—why politics attract so poor a quality of leadership—is because vital men who really want something done feel a deep instinct that the selfish forces of cliques, groups, interests, whether of labor or capital, in American life have grown too strong, and that "there must," as one leader expressed it, "be some kind of a new deal."

The causes of the present disorder and unrest reach far back and deep down the war merely accelerated developments already under way. At the bottom lies the popular discontent, which has been growing for years, with the economic arrangements of society; a feeling that they are unjust and undemocratic; a feeling that while there have been enormous developments in machinery and business organization, the social and political structure has not kept pace with them. I was amazed the other day to look at the lists of unions affiliated with one of the principal city central bodies: school teachers, actors, newspaper writers, architects, nurses. They are all coming in. Public employes are coming forces using the fine burst of passion for "more deal," for "public rights," for "law and order" in America to serve their own selfish interests—using it as a smoke-screen to conceal their own purposes—there is, it seems to me, a new sense afgoot that law and order must be based upon a real understanding of the new conditions and upon a solid foundation of justice.

Never before has there been such a number of inquiries from all sides and by all kinds of organizations; or such a desire to get at the truth. We have had government inquiries—one commission now sitting—which have aroused unusual public interest. It is nothing that the President's first commission failed; at least, it failed dramatically, with the protonciats of the opposing issues clearly revealed.

On what may be called the side of the capitalist there is a change marked. The other day in the office of one of the notable figures of Wall Street—where one would least expect to find such a sentiment—I saw framed and hanging on the wall this quotation from a speech by Mr. Root, delivered in January of last year:

"The old system has broken down. War was the final declaration of invalidity of the old system. Science has not only not said her last word, but is fairly to be credited as only lisping the alphabet of annihilation."

Organizations such as chambers of commerce and merchants' associations have been working on the problem. They all begin with the assumption that the old system is at least something. If not, as Asquith says, broken down, and that new methods must be devised to meet the situation. I have before me, for example, the report of the Merchants' Association of New York, which attributes the difficulty to the greed and blindness of both groups—labor and capital—and suggests the following remedies, which are very different in tenor from those which would have been recommended by a similar organization a few years ago:

"The recognition by both employers and employes that the determination to achieve national prosperity rather than to enforce maximum selfish returns should be the controlling motive in industry.

"The establishment of a recognized and permanent method of conference between the employer and his employes.

CHURCH IS MOVING.

"The limitation of the economic law of supply and demand as a basis of labor policy by the utilization of a more human doctrine."

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has also made public the careful report of a committee which lays down thirteen "principles of industrial relations." Among these principles are the following:

"The public interest requires adjustment of industrial relations by peaceful methods.

"The right of workers to organize in as clearly recognized as that of any other element or part of the community.

"Industrial harmony and prosperity will be most effectually promoted by adequate representation of the parties in interest."

The church, which represents a great conservative opinion in America, is moving as never before, trying to understand and meet the new conditions and problems. In one church I know on a recent Sunday morning one large men's class discussed "The Relation Between Wages and Production"; another was studying Professor Rauschenbusch's book on social problems in the light of Christian teaching, and a women's class was considering "The Health of the Community."

The great church movement has been spending tens of thousands of dollars making an investigation of the steel strike; and one need only refer to the social reconstruction program of the Federal Council of Churches in America and the appointment of the Catholic War Council of the United States to be convinced of the deep and serious interest of the churches in this problem.

In a recent statement the Unitarian Church of America says:

"The claim to a more equitable distribution of the profits of industry is not only clamorous but just."

A sense that the old system is unjust and needs revision permeates all groups of our society. A prominent business man took from his pocket the other day and read to me this paragraph:

"The rapid growth of great cities, the enormous masses of immigrants (many of them ignorant of our language) and the greatly increased complications of life have created conditions under which the provisions for obtaining justice which were formerly sufficient are sufficient no longer. I think the true criticism which we should make upon our own conduct is that we have been so busy about our individual affairs that we have been slow to appreciate the changes of conditions which to so great an extent have put justice beyond the reach of the poor."

"What Bolshevik said that?" he inquired, and answered his own question. "It was Elihu Root."

He was quoting from a new and exhaustive study of the "present denial of justice to the poor," made by so respectable a body as the Carnegie Foundation.

LABOR ALSO AWAKENING.

Not only public and business and religious bodies are awakening, but labor groups as well. Labor is learning that it has public as well as special interests, that to a large extent it is the public. I heard a speech at the convention of the Labor party at Chicago in November by Glenn E. Plumb, whose name is connected with a new plan, the Plumb plan, for railroad control. He set forth the new situation in a way which seemed to startle some of the labor leaders there assembled. He said that in the early days of organized labor craft groups could get together and by organization force up wages, the cost of which the employers promptly passed along to the public. But what is the public? asked Mr. Plumb, and went on to show that a large majority of the public was made up of wage earners or wage earners' families, so that when a strong union got a raise in wages most of it was paid by other wage earners. As more and more labor organizations got into the field, the more wages were forced up, the faster grew the process by which increasing wages for one group chased up the living costs of all the other groups.

No might also have said, but did not, that not only increasing wages, but lessening production whether caused by the limitation of output by labor unions, the inefficiency of employers or by strikes or lockouts, had to be met by the public, a majority of which was also wage earners. In short, we are all the public toward each separate greedy group, whether of workers or employers.

Mr. Plumb's idea is that there has got to be a "new deal, a new arrangement of society" he has a "plan" for working it out, so has the new Labor party, so have the Socialists. I am not here entering into the merits or weaknesses of any of these plans or proposals, or other coming from labor or capitalistic organizations, or churches or other public but calling attention to them as evidences of the wide awakening to the seriousness of the problem and the effort to grapple with it.

A new note was also prominent in the so-called "bill of rights" issued by a group of 113 union leaders at Washington on December 12. There is a clear attempt to meet the new public criticism of labor organization, especially regarding productivity and efficiency, by the proposal of new remedies for the organization of

WILL SELL FOOD DRAFTS IN U. S. FOR EUROPE

A practical plan whereby persons in the United States may provide destitute friends or relatives in Central Europe with food, at a minimum of trouble and "red tape," has been worked out by the American Relief Administration through Herbert C. Hoover.

The administration is stocking warehouses in Warsaw, Hamburg, Vienna, Budapest and Prague with flour, beans, bacon, canned milk, corned beef, lard and cottonseed oil. Food drafts may be bought at any bank affiliated with the American Bankers' Association in denominations of $10 and $50, which the purchaser can mail to friends in these localities, or can be placed in the hands of the administration to be given to undesignated needy persons.

This plan gives the opportunity to supply food promptly to the destitute. The people of stricken Europe need food, not money, and Mr. Hoover says they need it at the earliest possible moment. With one of these drafts a person in Poland, Germany, Austria, Hungary or Czecho-Slovakia can obtain upon presentation at his local warehouse the value of the draft in food.

All that will be necessary is to present the order and carry the food away. It will not be necessary to cash the draft at a bank or send a money order. The price of the foodstuffs will be as low as possible and purchasers here can be assured that they will be given the greatest measure of relief possible.

If any person desires to give aid and has no friends to send the drafts, the American Relief Administration announces that it will be glad to forward the draft to its agents abroad, who will see that it is used where urgent relief is most necessary.

A food draft for $10 gives the recipient 24½ pounds of flour, 10 pounds of beans, eight pounds of bacon and eight cans of milk. The amount obtainable on a $50 order is considerably more than five times this amount.

The European agent will notify the administration here when the draft has been honored and the issuing bank can then notify the American purchaser of the draft.

CUT CREDITS TO EUROPE, SAYS HARDING

By International News Service

Washington, Jan. 23.—The government must not be expected to establish further credits for European nations in financial distress, and the vast sums that are demanded for European rehabilitation must come through credits arranged through the medium of private capital and enterprise, Governor W. P. G. Harding of the United States Federal Reserve Board today declared in an address before the delegates to the second pan-American financial conference.

Governor Harding laid it down as a policy which the nation must adhere rigidly that governmental economy, thrift, and conservation must be the watchword, and declared it to be absolutely imperative that in future foreign credits must be restricted to essential purposes.

"The Secretary of the Treasury has said Congress for money to advance about $150,000,000 for purely humanitarian reasons in order to prevent actual starvation in certain localities," Governor Harding said. "If with this exception there appears to be no probability that further credits will be established by the government of the United States.

"It is evident, therefore, that we must depend upon private enterprise and capital to provide the credits which will be needed for the rehabilitation of Europe, and for the maintenance of our export trade."

Governor Harding drew a vivid contrast in comparing conditions five years ago with the United States standing as a debtor on the world's balance sheet to the extent of $6,000,000,000 and the situation as it is presented today with Uncle Sam a creditor to the rest of the world in an amount approximating $14,000,000,000.

"Our total national debt, as represented by outstanding obligations of the government, has increased from $1,000,000 in 1914 to approximately $25,000,000,000 today," he said.

REPORT CHURCHES ARE GIVING AID TO FARMERS

Optimistic reports were made by all field workers at the meeting of the committee on rural life of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, held in Boston. This organization is for the purpose of interesting the church in the economic and social problems of the farming villages, as well as in the spiritual welfare of the farmer and his family. It was reported that in many instances churches were taking the lead in aiding the farmer with his agriculture and promoting cooperative organizations. In other instances the churches are promoting a more enjoyable social life in the small rural communities. Speakers declared that an essential part of their program was the union of small and weak churches in communities not able to support more than one.

Veteran Made Police Chief

WILLARD R. COOK.

Willard R. Cook, one of the traffic officers at the North Station, served for ten months in the merchant marine service, three of which were spent overseas on the former German ship Hercules, which was renamed the Philippines. During that time he had to dodge the German submarine more than once. On one occasion a sub which had sunk a French cruiser and two merchant ships two days out from Bordeaux, sighted his ship and playfully peppered his boat four times with the deck gun without any serious mishap. He is twenty-five years of age and married and lives with his wife and one child in the South End. Previous to joining the service he was engaged in the trucking business in Boston. Before that he was a conductor for three years on the Plymouth & Brockton street car line and the old Hay State road. He is a Plymouth man.

CONNOR ASSOCIATES HOLD ANNUAL BALL

More than 1,000 persons attended the 11th annual ball of the John T. Connor Associates held in Convention Hall.

There was a concert and entertainment by artists from various Boston theatres.

The guests included Charles F. Adams, president of the company; Judge William J. Day of South Boston, and Dr. William B. Keeler, physician for the associates.

John J. McCarthy, president of the associates, was floor marshal, and he was assisted by Frank C. Jones, Richard Koehrman, Henry H. Woolard and Ralph Burkhardt.

President McCarthy announced that the John T. Connor Company had already put into effect a system of profit-sharing with its employes as the company had made known a month ago. He also stated that the company added sixty stores to its chain during the last year.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps are not prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

THE TYPE of man or woman who spends a good deal of time saving a cent or two on a ten-cent purchase, but who neglects to watch for savings that run into a small-sized bank-roll on large purchases is as old as the proverb that deals with them!

Filene value-giving is not merely on lower priced lines. As a matter of record, the Filene store, due to its particular value-giving organization, is as really and as well or better qualified to save folks money on large purchases as on small ones.

This is not by accident. It is due to organization and method. We buy high priced lines as carefully and with as much a line on the price as we do low priced lines where the price shows more.

And we sell differently too. Our profits are not made on a few individual sales, in which each purchaser must pay a very large share of the cost of doing business.

Each individual large purchase is but a drop in the bucket. No large amount needs to be added to us. Starting with modest profits, and distributing them over an enormous surface, all are enabled to profit by Filene organization, by Filene methods, and chiefly by

CASEY STARTS INCOME TAX DRIVE

Thousands of Federal individual income tax blanks received at the internal revenue office enabled Acting Collector Andrew J. Casey to start upon the first part of the income tax drive by mailing them to all Federal taxpayers who filed a return last year.

A large force of deputies and clerks are now engaged in this work and it is expected that by February 1 the 250,000 blanks required in this district will be stamped, addressed and mailed so that taxpayers should wait until then before making application to the office for them.

In connection with the income drive this year Collector Casey has arranged to have the field force of deputies stationed in different parts of the State to assist taxpayers in making out their returns, but these will not take up their duties until after all of the forms have been mailed from the Boston office which will be about the first of next month.

TIME UP MARCH 15.

When the blanks are out announcements will be made of the location of these deputies, which will be in centres of population so that they may be reached easily by the people of all communities. They will be available day and evening until March 15, when the returns must be filed and payment, either in full or in part, made on the 15th.

Taxpayers who seek the aid of these deputies should bear in mind that they must have with them the blanks received through the mail, as each is stamped with a special stencil number that is used in filing and locating the returns.

Only persons who have not previously filed a return will be supplied with blanks at the outside offices. The reason for this is that some taxpayers would get two blanks, one by applying at the office and one by mail, with the result that the supply, which is just sufficient for the district, would become exhausted before all taxpayers were supplied.

TO EXTEND SERVICE.

Besides the revenue offices now open at Springfield, Worcester, Lawrence, New Bedford and Fall River, it is planned to have forces located at Lowell, Haverhill, Fitchburg, Holyoke, Greenfield and Brockton. Service will be extended to other cities and towns and announcements of the time and location will be made in newspapers.

Corporations having profits growing out of government contracts are required this year to file with the Internal Revenue Department a return on Form 1120-S which is somewhat different from that of previous years.

Special mention of Form 1120-S is made on the ordinary form sent to corporations as they will not be mailed except upon request. These are now available and may be secured at the office of Acting Collector Andrew J. Casey, Little Building, Boston.

15 Arrested in Back Bay Hunt for Gamblers

Fifteen men were captured early today at No. 27 Lansdowne street, Back Bay, in a gaming raid conducted by Lieutenant Frank H. Thompson and patrolmen from the Boylston street station.

The prisoners were fined $3 each in the Roxbury Court.

The police seized a pack of playing cards, but found no money. Francis Regan of Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, and the fourteen others were charged with being present where gaming implements were found.

HEALTH BOARD ASKS CONTROL OVER FOOD

A bill to give the State Department of Health absolute control over the construction of all buildings in which food is handled in any form, and over the employes, even to the extent of compelling them to undergo physical examination, has been filed with the Legislature for action at this session.

Perhaps no more drastic, sweeping or radical attempt "to provide for clean, sanitary and healthful food establishments" has ever been submitted to a legislative assembly in the entire country.

The bill itself tells its own drastic purposes. Section 1 says:

"No person shall manufacture, prepare, pack, can, bottle, keep, store, handle, serve or distribute, in any manner, food, for the purpose of sale, in an unclean, unsanitary, or unhealthful establishment or under unclean, unsanitary or unhealthful conditions."

Another idea of the full sweep it makes is gained from the next section, which says:

"Each establishment shall be constructed, maintained and operated with strict regard for the health of the employes and for the purity and wholesomeness of the food therein produced, kept, stored, handled served or distributed, so far as may be reasonable, in the public interest, and consistent with the character of the establishment, pursuant to the following general requirements:

"1. The entire establishment and its immediate appertaining premises including the fixtures and furnishings, the machinery, apparatus, implements, utensils, receptacles, vehicles and other devices used in the production, keeping storing, handling serving or distributing of the food or of the materials used in food, shall be constructed, maintained and operated in a clean, sanitary and healthful manner.

"2. The food and the materials used in the food shall be protected from any foreign substances or injurious contamination which may render them unfit for human consumption.

"3. The clothing, habits and conduct of the employes shall be conducive to and promote cleanliness, sanitation and healthfulness."

Violation of any provision of the proposed law would be punishable for the first offence by a fine not in excess of $200 and for the second offence up to $500.

The bill is sponsored by and will be urged by the State Department of Health.

'AT 9:45' NOVEL MYSTERY PLAY AT PLYMOUTH

Owen Davis' Latest Holds Attention Throughout; Melodrama Well Acted

By FRED J. MEISSAC, Dramatic Editor.

Owen Davis is a hold over from the good old days of saw mills locomotives, rivers of real water and double-dyed villains with black mustaches.

Since the old fashioned melodrama went down for the third time in a sea of tin, Davis has specialized steadily and steadily and steadily in the 25c variety, sugar coating the old stuff good and getting away with it more often than he should.

A "LEARLESS" MYSTERY.

Having a job as a critic I have banged away at Mr. Davis on numerous occasion for the unfinished manner in which he was wont to leave his brain children, and because I didn't think much of his output anyway.

This affair "At 9:45" which finally got going at the Plymouth Theatre yesterday afternoon, is a long jump ahead of his usual stuff. In fact a large, highly-perfumed bouquet is hereby presented to Owen Davis for building a mystery piece which doesn't leak. Even the most sophisticated theatregoer is puzzled until the last scene as to who shot the gentleman whose limp body falls out of a closet about one minute after the curtain rises.

The business manager of the show personally requested every critic not to mention in his review the identity of the real criminal, as it would take the foam off the beverage for people who might read it and then see the entertainment.

ACTION RAPID AND TENSE.

Therefore I won't mention it, and anyway I don't think the person they finally pin the crime upon is the right one at that. Lots of the audience feel sure that a mistake is made, and if they would keep the curtain up a few minutes longer somebody else would get the medal.

The action of "At 9:45" is rapid and tense. There is no time for entertaining, which is where Owen Davis doesn't live, but there are lots of tense, snappy and amusing lines.

During the course of the play three or four different people confess the shooting and the unanimity with which everybody agrees that the receiver of the bullet deserved what he got is remarkable. Until the last scene "At 9:45" is a a rattling good play. In the final scene the piece takes an awful flop, and you have a feeling that with ten or fifteen minutes extra work Mr. Davis might have done better. However, much obliged for an exciting evening.

PLAY WELL CAST.

Mr. William A. Brady, Ltd., made the production, Ltd., being an Anglicism which requires the attention of the local Simon Pures. The performance is a good one upon the whole, though old "Ltd." might have provided two or three better actors for some of the important parts.

Dorothy Bernard, who stepped into the shoes of Marie Goff, whose illness caused the postponement from Monday, did excellent work as the mysterious Ruth Jordan. Robert Harrison as the father of the assassinated youth was all right, and so was Edwin Caldwell as a chauffeur. Idalene Cotton as an Irish maid shot over a lot of witty lines. John Cromwell staged the show and did a good job but as a police captain he reminded me of a bookkeeper in a basketshop. And Kenneth McKenna in the hero's position looked and acted as though his name was Kenneth.

FILMS ARE MAKING SOLDIERS THINK

"Moving pictures improve morale in the army," said Thomas H. Martell of Washington, who has been investigating the film shows in the camps and posts of the Northeastern Department. He said:

"I am convinced you can get a man's attention quicker through his eye than through his ear. You could not get certain needed information before this same type of men through the printed page. Through the moving picture you can teach and instruct them satisfactorily.

The moving picture arouses the man's interest and he begin to think over what he has seen.

A New Lit le Bride With An Old, Old Problem

"Why, what in the world is the matter, Nan?" exclaimed Helen Lawton, as she found her friend sobbing brokenheartedly.

"Oh," cried Nan, "it's that wretched cornstarch pudding. This is the first luncheon I've given since I was married, and I wanted to have everything so nice, and my pudding is thin and lumpy, and—and, impossible."

"Never mind, dear," soothed Helen. "I'm so glad I came early to help you. We'll have Puddine, and everyone will think you are the smartest little bride in the country."

The luncheon was a wonderful success, and the dessert—a delicious, rich chocolate blanc mange—enjoyed by everyone.

"It's wonderful!" exclaimed Nan gratefully to Helen. "Tell me all about that marvelous dessert!"

"It's just Puddine," smiled Helen, "an economical, easy-to-make dessert that always turns out right—a firm, smooth mold of rich chocolate, cream vanilla, rose vanilla, orange, lemon—in fact, your favorite flavor."

"How do you make it?" asked Nan.

"Why," her friend replied, "all you have to do is to add sugar and milk—either fresh or condensed—and boil for three minutes. The best part of it is that it has so many uses. Puddine makes delicious pie fillings and rich velvety ice cream. Used as a cake flavor, it adds to the richness of the cake."

"And is it expensive?" questioned Nan.

"No; a 15c box of Puddine will serve 15 people, and of course you need use only as much of the box at a time as you need."

"Well," said Nan, "I certainly am glad to know about it. I can assure you that I shall never again be without it."

"Puddine," said her friend, "is my standby. It's a delicious all-round dessert that tops off any meal."

Rumors Continue Regarding Transfer of Braves Players to the Giants

President Harry H. Frazee and Manager Ed Barrow are so well satisfied with contracts and attending to other business matters that they have left for headquarters in the belief that there is no use to hang around the Hotel Lenox any longer. Frazee and Barrow have been here since the close of the baseball season, and during that time they have had their hands full with baseball affairs. Frazee has been in New York for the greater part of the time, and Barrow has been at the Lenox most of the time.

But the Red Sox president took a couple of days off to see a play, and he was for sale, or would be on the market in the future, and so on, and to say that he had several offers for his franchise is an understatement. He can be quoted as saying that he has received an offer for his franchise which is exceeded only by one of some three months ago, which was exceeded only by one of some three months previous. Chicago, February 20.

With one of the parties concerned in the deal, Frazee said, he was on some too good terms, and if he (Frazee) were to mention the players who were concerned in the Red Sox at the present time the deal would likely be blocked.

It is also known very definitely that Ruth has not been willing according to a report emanating from the Yankee headquarters. Ruth is going to attempt a new home run record and Huggins does not intend to block the Babe in his attempt.

• • •

Maranville and Hornsby for the Giants, despite Mcgraw's recent assurances to Arthur Fletcher et al, that they did not need to worry about the shake-up of the new York National, indeed this year, is a report that will not down. On the contrary, it is gaining in strength every day, if reports from New York are to be credited. Secret of the Rabbit and Hornsby taking the Giants, French says, fell out at third base after Heinie Zimmerman was banished last season, will go to the keystone pack at the Polo Grounds and make room for a hot corner. Maranville will be in short. These three men, with Hal Chase on first base, will make one of the fastest infields ever gathered together in baseball, and one that is not at all unlikely to be seen in action next summer, simply because the National League cannot afford to see a franchise ousted from their premises. New York, the Yankees, are not a city of syndicate baseball, but don't pay too much attention to the fact, it is simply a measure of self-protection.

The Ruth sale critics, like the poor, are always with us. A few recent offers made by the fans follow:

GOOD MOVE FOR RUTH.

The Yankees have been looking all records for easy purchases by giving Frazee $1,000,000 for Ruth. Chicago, February 20.

Ruth: I note his remark that Babe's popularity, gained by his own ability to pickle home runs, had a beneficial effect on the fortunes members of the team financially as they did not get what they considered their full share of the applause from the fans. After reading this I take pleasure in offering to secure one cent a box admission for the Babe's every appearance on the home lot. Yours for the limit. Chicago, February 20.

Being numbered among the teammates of Babe Ruth, I am in a position to say a few words of the treatment he received from the owner and himself, he did not get anything better than the rest of us. Instead of hearing the world's record for home runs we kept hearing away. The other players on the Red Sox who are small enough to remain in the game feel the same way and would rather their best work in Ruth was done in a game of regular baseball than by being numbered among the teammates of such a strategist played and as round ash late as Babe Ruth is.

All these with lots of ball players is that they are sore when they see another player attempt to get out of the old run, they are ever ready to criticise and ridicule. Babe Ruth has been going good in a big way, who comes along and makes them all look foolish, they are asked to admire his work, yet they can't team up with him because he is a favorite with the fans and they are only looked upon as a minor part of the machine.

The fans like to go to a game and see a little original stuff pulled off, such as the lamented King Kelly used to pull, but outside of some pitchers pitching to high class league pitchers and a phenomenal catch by some outfielder, every one is alike, there hasn't been anything out of the ordinary to attract the crowds to ball games for the past few years except Ty Cobb, on account of his daring base-running, and Babe Ruth on account of his mighty swats.

Some of the players who cannot play ball on a team where there is a player who has it in every move and is a real ball player are and play ball for all they are worth—this is what they are paid for—and no doubt in a short time they would fall into the good graces of the fans as real ball players and we shall await with interest the feeling that Babe arouses in the New York fans. Why, if he were weak hearted the jealousy that exists some circles would cause him into a strike-out king. No doubt that would have an effect of increasing some players' worth to their owners.

J. F.

HOOPER A PATTERN.

Without doubt Babe is a wonderful player but I think he would be even more wonderful were he to acquire some of Harry Hooper's leading virtues, namely, not permitting his head to outgrow his mental. If Frazee's statement regarding troubles making is true, it certainly don't behoove him for his actions. Another star will run and Boston will win again as sure as God created baseball and baseball stars.

Cambridge, Jan.

NO MORE HITS OVER THE FENCE.

No more balls will go over the fence,
No more will they hit a home run,
No more will they make a base hit,
For Babe Ruth has gone and retired.

L. H. D.

SELL BARROW, TOO.

The best thing that Frazee and Barrow can do now if they want to clean up a lot of money is to stage a concert on Fenway Park this Summer, called "Tramps Are Public or Hungry for the Gelt." I go so far as to say that the gate receipts would exceed the price paid for Ruth by a lot of rotten eggs with which the fans could not be restrained from throwing in.

The big guns in the club say Ruth was a trouble maker. Well, if they would get a manager that would preserve discipline in the team it would be all right. Was Ruth a trouble maker when Lee and Jess were here? What we want is a man like Carrigan who would keep harmony among the players.

As this man Chicago Frazee said Ruth he will sell Shank, Hinchy, Hooper, Peckinpaugh and Scott if he is offered his price. If he does I hope he will keep Barrow and he will make the fans a little bit happy anyway.

Chelsea Fan.

FRAZEE'S SALE.

No one admires the hitting of Babe Ruth more than I do. He is the marvel of baseball age—as a slugger. Notwithstanding all that, and granting that he would be the first batsman with our team-mates, I fear that he is a detriment to the team in his efforts for team play, the paramount object to be remembered at all times and in all things.

His overshadows all other members of his team (all stellar players, too) with his extraordinary hitting is a real idol and, therefore, eclipses the greatly (the best effort of the rest). As has been shown throughout the 1919 season a beginning of Babe's (as all the other players) a feeling that they are failing to shine, and the ball player can say ball if advised to get out of the limelight.

It is human nature and can only be remedied as Mr. Frazee has remedied it.

WEST ROXBURY TRACK TEAM IN LEAD

Thad Keefe's track team at West Roxbury got the jump on South Boston High and Charlestown in the track events at the East Armory, 46 points being gained by the Roxbury team, of which 30 were scored in the senior division. The field events between these three schools will be run off next Wednesday at the Charlestown Gymnasium.

The sub-junior events (a new classification this season) for boys under four feet ten inches tall and 16 years of age, were won by the West Roxbury team with six points, against South Boston's three and Charlestown's two. A boy who is entitled to put in the sub-junior class is allowed to compete with the juniors but may not compete in both classes.

Coach Keefe of the West Roxbury High has some fine runners in the senior division in Ross, Royce, Cooney, Merton and Lydon, but is not especially strong in the intermediate and junior classes. South Boston showed up the best in the intermediate division, Burke of South Boston made good time in the 35 yard dash and should also place well in the high jump next week.

The meet was run off in first class manner with the exception of one case where Royce of West Roxbury was allowed to finish after having run on the inside of the track and passing Tibbetts of South Boston in the 600-yard run.

Hockey will hold complete sway tomorrow with nine classy games on the schedule. Brookline at Exeter, Arlington High meets the Dartmouth Freshman and Andover the Harvard Freshman, Noble & Greenough vs. St. Marks, Cambridge Latin vs. Stoneham, Brown & Nichols vs. Milton Academy, Choate School vs. Pomfret School, Newton vs. Middlesex School, and U. S. S. Nantucket vs. Country Day School, also attract considerable interest.

The game between Arlington and Melrose High hockey teams, which was to be played Saturday, has been postponed until February 11 at Arlington. The management at Arlington was forced to call off the game with Melrose in order to play the Dartmouth freshmen. Melrose is now without a game for Saturday and will not play again till Wednesday, when they cross sticks with the Newton seven at the Newton rink.

The Cambridge Latin hockey team still retains their lead in the Interscholastic Hockey League by virtue of their win over the Brookline seven at Brookline yesterday. The Zarakov brothers, "Tasy" and Benny, and Foley and Fitzgerald have been doing some classy work on the ice for the Cambridge team. The Latin School team is now sure of being in the first four which will play for the title in the Ice Pavilion next month.

The Brookline hockey team has been showing a great improvement in their work in the past few games and should give the Exeter team a hard game. Charlie O'Leary, who has been prominent in sports at the Brookline school for the past three years, will be playing against his former schoolmates and will undoubtedly cause them a lot of trouble O'Leary has been out of Exeter's last two games on account of a death in his family.

George Owens, the newly-elected captain of the Harvard freshman team, will lead his team for the first time against the Andover Academy seven. The Harvard Yearlings have been showing a fine brand of stick work thus far and there is no reason why their string of wins should be broken in the Andover game.

The Bowdoin College eighth annual indoor interscholastic track meet between English, Latin, Commerce and the Harvard Freshman which will keep the runners of these schools out of the meet. All the preparatory and high schools of the New England States are invited to participate in the Bowdoin meet. Entries must be sent to Manager S. C. Burke, track manager at Bowdoin before the 6th of February.

Tri-College Track Meet Likely to Be Scheduled

A three-corner track meet among Harvard, Dartmouth and Cornell, to be contested February 28 at Mechanics Hall, was expected to be scheduled at a meeting today of Graduate Treasurers Fred W. Moore of Harvard, Rowena Barry of Cornell and Horace O. Pender of Dartmouth.

Fred W. Moore, Harvard's graduate treasurer and manager of athletics, had tried to get the University of Pennsylvania, with Dartmouth, into a triangular board track meet with the pupils of Pooch Donovan. But the Philadelphia Quakers "would not make it" and that three-cornered affair had to be called off.

Cornell, so often the winner in the big interscholastic outdoor championship meet, was approached and showed enthusiasm for the project. Indeed, a board track meet of a high calibre would be difficult to arrange.

LEGION CHAMP MAY GET BOUT FOR TITLE

By ED CURLEY.

From way off in Fowlin, Colorado, comes an epistle from Jimmy Bronson, who is managing "Bob" Martin, the A. E. F. and Inter-Allied heavyweight champion.

Bronson simply wants us to know that despite all the talk of four and five hundreds of thousands for a Dempsey and Carpentier battle there is a bonafide offer of $75,000 for Carpentier to fight Martin. Then he adds that the American Legion proposes to offer a championship belt to the winner.

It is hardly possible that the French idol will consider this offer at the present moment.

But there is a faint hope that his combat with Dempsey may fall through. If such should be the case he may listen to this somewhat small enticement.

No matter how the situation develops, Bronson is going along showing Martin slowly up the ladder of fame. That A. E. F. title is bound to be an attraction, especially with the boys that were the khaki.

While Martin hasn't announced his intention to trek eastward, that event will happen sooner or later.

There isn't the slightest doubt that his debut here would be greatly attended, for everybody with a drop of real sporting blood would love to see the champion of the allied armies—North and South.

BOSTON "Y" FFIVE TO BATTLE FITCHBURG

The Boston "Y" will tackle Fitchburg "Y" on the Huntington avenues court tomorrow night. This game will have a direct bearing on the "Y" State championship. Fitchburg having defeated Springfield and Boston each in the first game of their series. The defeat that Fitchburg chalked up against Boston in December is the only reverse that the locals have suffered this season.

The Boston "Y" Intermediates will play Fitchburg "Y" Meteors for the second attraction. The Boston "Y" Intermediates have turned down all opponents other than the Meteors whom they fell before at Fitchburg.

The Michael Perkins Post five will line up against the Bunker Hill Post team tomorrow evening in the South Boston High School Hall. Both teams have been showing up well lately and a close contest is looked for.

RUTH PURCHASE BIG GAMBLE OF BASEBALL

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Replying to some two hundred fans who have written to inquire whether the New York Yankees paid $125,000 for Babe Ruth, will say, I don't know.

My opinion is that the sum was somewhere in the vicinity of $100,000 and that, regardless of Ruth's worth as a ball player, his drawing power at the gate or anything else, the club that purchased him took a frightful chance.

If Ruth continues to be a star hitter for three years the team probably will get its money back. On the basis of attendance at the Yankee games for the last year, which was the largest they ever have had, Ruth would yield them about $35,000 a year if he adds as much to the attendance, which is doubtful.

The chance they took, however, is whether Ruth will keep his agreement with the team. He broke a contract with Boston which he wrote himself and which he insisted be a three-year contract.

If he can get away with that and be promoted and honored, why should he not break his agreement with the Yankees if he has a good year and get another raise?

And who is to blame, Ruth or the club owners?

HAD RUTH'S NUMBER.

An old thing about Ruth is the difference of opinion among ball players as to his ability and his worth to a team. I was told last Summer by two of his fellow players that he was the biggest drawback on the team, and by a pitcher who has pitched to him for years that he cannot hit.

This pitcher declares that, if a pitcher works well with Ruth, he is a sucker at bat.

That sounds foolish or else Ruth's reputation scared a lot of pitchers out of their ability to pitch to him.

Was the pitcher who gave me the dope showed me the scores of seven games he had worked against Ruth and in which he was known the big Babe made just two hits, a single and a double.

It may be that this one pitcher has something on Ruth, but supposing there were a few more that this pitcher or some other should feel a little jealous or something like that and lay it off around the American League that he pitches so-and-so to Ruth?

And suppose every pitcher works that way—how much of an attraction would Ruth be inside of one month?

CARDS MAY BE IN RUNNING.

The rumor that Hugo Bezdek, who was dropped by Pittsburgh because (according to Dreyfuss) he would not confine his work entirely to baseball, is to handle the St. Louis Cards is certainly given the Cards a big boost among the dopesters. Without criticising Branch Rickey, it is true that a number of his players consider his system of coaching and handling a team as a joke and make a burlesque of his blackboard work.

The Cards have a corking ball club, one which frames up stronger and stronger as one studies it. Of course it has been handicapped by lack of financial backing, but is reported in much better financial shape now.

What it needed to make it a strong bidder for high honors was one more corking pitcher and a manager with whom the players were in sympathy and one that team Hugo Bezdek and let Ferdy Schupp go through the season showing as much as he showed late last Fall, and the Cards will be among those present and accounted for next October.

Besides, it ought to be their turn to win a pennant. Chicago, Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, the Giants and Reds have won in rotation the last six years, so it ought to be the turn of either Pittsburgh or the Cards—and much stranger things have happened.

In fact, it looks as if the Pirates and the Cards will frame up among the strongest teams of the league when the ball rolling—and that is not long now.

34 ROUNDS OF BOXING FOR QUINCY FANS

There will be thirty-four rounds of boxing at the Collseum A. C. of Quincy tomorrow night. Kid Lafond of Lynn will meet Irish Paddy Flynn of Everett in the final of ten rounds. Tony Natin of Brighton and Joe Greco of Providence will also box ten rounds. Bert Skillett of Quincy will oppose Sergeant Swan of Camp Devens over the six-round route, while there will also be a six-session prelim.

Flynn and Reich Barred for Fake in Ring Go

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 22.—Dan "Porky" Flynn of Boston and Al Reich of New York have been barred temporarily from engaging in boxing bouts in New Jersey by the State athletic commission, it was announced today.

It is charged that the boxers staged a "sham" battle in Trenton on Christmas Day. Flynn is barred for one year and Reich for six months. The commission ordered that the money which the fighters were to have received be turned over to charity.

LEGION POST PLANNING AMATEUR BOXING MEET

The Charles F. Hammond, Jr., Post, American Legion, of Dorchester, is planning an entertainment for its members, and it is intended to arrange special amateur boxing matches. Peter F. Costello is in charge of the affair and would be pleased to hear from the following amateur boxers: "Dodo" O'Connor, Chantle, Pat Kelley, Harold Dasher, Charlie Donovan, Pat McCluskey, Vincent Forde and Nikie Searles. Address all communications to Peter F. Costello at No. 148 Harvard street, Dorchester, or phone Dorchester 5705-R any evening.

FOLLOWED ORDERS, HE SAYS

Unfair to Condemn Me Without Hearing, Champion Wires Drexel-Biddle

New York, Jan. 23.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, in a telegram addressed to Major A. J. Drexel-Biddle, president of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, asks for a thorough investigation of his war record in order that he may clear himself of the charges made by members of the American Legion that he was a slacker.

Dempsey declares he did not try in any way to evade service during the war, and says he simply followed the instructions given to him by representatives of the government.

"Am I to be crucified and condemned," he asks, "because I followed the orders given to me by the government? This is an appeal to you as a fair, square, rough and honorable sportsman to investigate this matter thoroughly, and if I am innocent of the charge of draft-dodging, clear me publicly before the world, and if I am guilty condemn me."

Dempsey's appeal has been referred to the arbitration committee of the board, which is expected to make a decision soon as to whether the request for an investigation shall be granted.

Dartmouth Students to Discuss Sports at Meeting

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 23.—A mass meeting of the entire college has been called by the Dartmouth Athletic Council for tomorrow night, to discuss athletics. In recent meetings the council has decided that athletic conditions in the college, especially recent developments and phases, have come to be of so great importance that such a meeting is necessary. While the council is not willing to announce beforehand the specific objects of this gathering, it is expected that various future athletic policies of the college will be outlined.

SHADES OF NIGHT HALT NO-SCORE HOCKEY GAME

Arlington High and Stoneham High School battled forty minutes without scoring and displayed some excellent hockey. Then followed three five-minute overtime periods, darkness finally forcing the game to a close.

"TWO AND THREE"

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER"

WITH "DUGS" DAIB

WHEN Dempsey starts chipping patriotism, he is in the defensive situation of a turtle without a shell.

INSTEAD of trotting forth with the nimble alibi, Manager Kearns should have adopted the style of the Alabama smoke at the murder trial. When the judge asked the culprit if he had anything to chirp, he buzzed that he didn't have anything to say and he was willing to let the whole matter drop.

WHICH is where Kearns pulled the well-known bloomer and earns the barbed wire sox and the cement spats. But all fight managers are slaves to art and must buzz their heads off at every opening.

NOBODY can accuse Dempsey of not being a fighter; leastwise, they can't accuse him to his face, unless they do it over a telephone. Anybody who piped him crease Willard and iron out Fulton knows that a bird like that loves to mingle and that fighting is his middle name. Trouble is that you can't tell what his first name is.

JACK was given the wrong steer at the start of the shindig. The guy at the tiller probably told him that the patriotism stuff was the bunk, and the only place for a scrapping gent was a plush lined shipyard with caviar trimmings. That was a place where a guy could hang up a record juggling rivets and probably get three years in vaudeville at the finish of the war. In addition, any guy near a drydock was sure to get a medal when Secretary Daniels started loosening up on the hardware department and cut loose with a barrage of citations that puzzled Admiral Sims better than Sam Loyd ever could have done.

DEMPSEY isn't to blame in this matter, but when the biscuits are burned it doesn't make any difference who mixed the dough. In the Dempsey retinue his manager is probably the works and the gold-filled hunting case in addition. Where he gummed the bid is in not realizing that a guy in the public eye can easily be manipulated until he becomes a cinder in the public eye. It's only the little guys who can get away with rough stuff. If Joe Moofus bamms his wife in the eye with a ham omelet, the incident and the eye are closed right there. She might tell the judge that the omelet was as light as a feather and Joe had no kick coming. In rebuttal Joe could state that he didn't like feathers, which puts the law on his side. No publicity or notoriety accrue on the original investment of one ham omelet.

BUT—when an Astorbilt or a Vanderfeller bops his frau in the mush with a leg of mutton or wraps a caviar pudding around her neck for a lavalliere, boys, the incident is just starting. It's public property, like lawsonia in a quick lunch restaurant. The bigger you are the easier you are to pipe. The frog can submerge where the elephant can't even get his feet wet.

THIS is no defence of Dempsey, any more than it is a defence of the Bergdoll boys, who were slackers because they forgot the formality of diving into the Home Guards or the shipyards.

THERE are thousands who might have pulled the same thing that Dempsey jerked, but are they getting bawled out every day in the papers? They mightn't stand so good with the neighbors, which is tough for a world's champion, as the world is his neighbor. It's fierce to be personal as grafts, meaning with cheese, but if Kearns had maintained an indiscreet silence there was an even chance of the soup cooling off enough to be scoffed.

WHEN Kearns busted open Jack's war record he cracked the wrong oyster. We even gave him the benefit of the robust doubt by dobbing into the Spanish, Civil and Mexican ballyhoos without finding a race. If there are any clues in the War of 1812 or the Revolution, they were wiped out when the British burned the Capitol after the scuffle at Bladensburg.

DEMETRAL WINS IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Bill Demetral of Chicago, substituting for Jimmy London, the Greek heavyweight champion who is critically ill with pneumonia, defeated Ernest Joire of Belgium in two straight falls of a fast and gruelling match at the Grand Opera House. Demetral had power and skill over his younger opponent, but the latter fought desperately every minute of the bout and both grapplers were cheered by pulsating holds.

Demetral gained the first fall in 32 minutes with a head chancery and hair hold following a giant swing. With the toe hold barred, both men, showing much animosity, went after the next bout in the punishment line. Till the fall came neither had the edge. Demetral's wicked hammerlocks took the steam out of Joire, but the latter retaliated with hand holds and head locks that made the former Greek champion wilt likewise.

Unable to pin Joire with a body scissors and arm lock which he secured often in the first period, Demetral found it an easy matter to pin the Belgian with the hold for the second fall in twelve minutes and fifteen seconds.

In the preliminaries, Johnny Kelton, a local welterweight, delighted the crowd with a remarkable repertoire of holds and flopped Oliver Goulette, his heavier opponent with a double wrist lock in twenty-six minutes and fifty seconds. In the semi-final, Peter Goulette of Woonsocket, a brother of Oliver, and Billy Elias of Boston staged a rough-house comedy bout that worked up the crowd to a frenzy. Goulette won in thirty minutes and ten seconds with a body hold out of a giant swing.

ENGLISH-DORCHESTER MEET ON TAP TODAY

English and Dorchester High were to stage the first big Boston dual indoor track meet of the season today at the East Armory. In addition to this tourney Hyde Park tackles Medford High at the latter's gym in Medford. Lynn Classical and English have eight meets with Boston College and Brookline High, respectively. Newton High and Boston Latin have Interclass meets on this afternoon.

EMERY TO BOX LEONARD IN 10-ROUNDER

By JACK CONWAY.

Louis Leonard, [illegible]-pound boxer, will display his fighting wares when he meets Johnny Emery of Cambridge in a ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C.'s show tonight. This is part of a program which includes forty sessions of boxing. Matchmaker McKinlay declares the show possesses the "kick" the fans items of these United States need in their journey across life's desert.

Leonard is one of the Y. [illegible] pions. He was [illegible] rday in New England rings when the big [illegible] came. He was among the first to respond to the great adventure. Eighteen months overseas gave the North End south added strength. He also profited mentally as a result of his stay in the service. He went to France a boy and returned a man.

This fact has been brought out by Leonard's work in the ring since returning to this country. He has displayed an expert knowledge of the fine points of the game and has not let an opening slip by.

Emery is a good, steady fighter and will test the ability of the North End boy.

Harry Silva of the West End will clash with Charley Miller, South End welterweight, in another ten-round affair. The latter boy is a champion for a near champion but it is not against the rules at the Commercial club for second and third raters to perform provided they give action.

Dutch Reagan of East Boston and Phil Christie of the South End meet in an eight-round frolic. Billy Coogan and Barney Reynolds will battle six frames while Harvey Mellen and Young Leonard will also go over the jumps in a six session whirl.

Jack Noyes, South End welterweight, will meet Joe Damarios of Franklin in the semi-final of eight rounds at the Commonwealth A. A.'s show tomorrow night. Another eight-round tussle and a six-session affair will be arranged today.

Eddie Tremblay, former sailor, will meet Matty Tarpey of New York in the final bout of twelve rounds. Tremblay is rated as one of the best middleweights in the East. In his last start he stopped Young Ahern. Tremblay is rangy fellow with a fast and punch equally well. In Mc[illegible] he will be opposed by a worthy opponent, as Kenny Tarpey is also traveling on high for the full distance.

John Lester Johnson, who is making his home in Boston, is hot on the trail of Jim McDonald. Johnson's manager has [illegible] which he claims to beat to bind a match with Fulton. The latter has been having a gay time in the ring lately, having twice been [illegible] stopped Tom Cowler. The latter is the champion knocked out fighter of the universe. Johnson has one ten-round bout to his credit with Jack Dempsey and would make things interesting for Fulton.

At Marlboro tonight Johnny Mooney, Newton boxing ace, will have Charley Bersin as an opponent in a twelve-round bout. Mooney is one of the big winners hereabouts. At the Suffolk Club Monday night he stopped Frankie Maher of Brooklyn in his last appearance at Marlboro. Mooney stopped Al Ketchel of Bridgeport. He also beated Al Calzone at Marlboro. Bersin has been a steady campaigner in New England rings and is not a bit bashful in stating h[illegible]

Chick West, Holyoke welterweight will [illegible] some real opposition when he [illegible] with Ike Kechel of Seattle in a two-to-round bout at Brockton tonight. Ketchel recently made his debut in Boston, but he did so too soon, as he was not sufficiently acclimated. He was, however, on his feet fighting hard when the mill ended. Ketchel has had plenty of time to prepare for his session's encounter and avers that he will smash his way to a decisive victory.

Spider Murphy is around telling the boys that if Joe Eagan beats Augie Ratner at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night that the Dorchester middleweight will go after a match with O'Dowd.

Jack Leonard writes that Bobby Dyson, New England bantamweight champion, was done an injustice when it was announced at Framingham the other night that Al Thomas had kayoed the New Bedford star twice. Dyson and Thomas, declares Leonard, have met only once and on that occasion Dyson was the youth who scored with the big wallop.

JOE EAGAN TO BATTLE AUGIE RATNER AT A. A. A.

Joe Eagan, Dorchester middleweight, and Augie Ratner will meet in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday night. Ratner was one of Uncle Sam's chief stars in the inter-allied boxing tournament, and is one of the few American middleweights who has been able to give Mike O'Dowd an even battle.

Newton Wins Again

Newton High's hockey team registered another victory, defeating Country Day, 7 to 0, at Bullough's pond, Newtonville.

Boston College Adds Boxing to List of Sports

Boxing, under the direction of a professional instructor, is expected to be introduced to Boston College. The combined graduate and student boards of Boston College, in a meeting [illegible] versity Heights, discussed the question of introducing boxing under the direction of a professional instructor, to the student body. The names of Porky Flynn, heavyweight; Billy Nixon, Pete Walker, Sam Langford and other more or less famous pugilists, were mentioned [illegible] connection with the coaching position.

The B. A. A. hockey sextet seems scheduled to add 500 points to its percentage in the Boston Amateur Hockey League standing tonight, unless a tremendous improvement and an unswerving determination to play hockey instead of to roughhouse is manifested by Don Sands' Yankee Division entry for the local club championship.

The present percentage of the B. A. A. is .000—that team having lost to the Harvard Club in its only contest thus far played—and the Horned Horses from Exeter street are very ambitious that better figures replace the three zeroes. With this end in view that have been working like Trojans preparing for tonight's battle, and, in addition may introduce in their lineup Irving Small, the old Arena H. C. player, who has been practicing with them, as well as J. H. Harley, the former Dalhousie College star from Halifax.

In the meeting of the B. A. A. and the Yankee Division teams, but half of the hockey bill is announced, for also on the schedule is a match in which the Dartmouth varsity and Tufts are the opponents. Just as the B. A. A. rules a pronounced favorite in the league contest, so does the Dartmouth team in the intercollegiate battle. These two college teams met last week at Hanover, and the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of the Green when the battle ended. It is quite probable, however, that the Green may depend somewhat on its substitutes tonight, in view of tomorrow night's clash with the Harvard seven, for a win in the latter game will place the victor at the top of the college list, neither Harvard nor Dartmouth having been defeated by a college

Rat Leather

A WELL-KNOWN naturalist has recorded that he once tanned several rat skins, and was of the opinion that they might be used for gloves of a delicate description, though the skins in their prepared state were rather thin and fragile. That the skin of a rat can be used for leather has been proved.

THE CINEMA MURDER

A Thrilling Mystery Film Serial of Love and Poverty With the Scene Laid in London and New York

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"The Cinema Murder" in motion pictures, with Miss Marion Davies as the charming heroine, a Cosmopolitan production, is being shown this week at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in Boston and at theatres in several surrounding cities. Screened under direction of George D. Baker. Presented by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Arteraft Picture.

"DO you know" was what Philip is the "[illegible] have ever been which the a[illegible] setting us i[illegible] time? I can't imagine [illegible] away, Mr. Ware."

"Perhaps [illegible] absence [illegible] success. I am sure I [illegible] have known so [illegible] see. I [illegible] of the [illegible] with you, Mr. Ware," [illegible] soldier-eyed, [illegible] shadow [illegible] will, narrow [illegible] eyes, cheeks, declared stepping [illegible] other folk don't [illegible] for much by the side of me. I am the manager of the theatre, and I am thundering glad that your first play has been at the 'New York,' sir. There's good stuff in it, and if I am any judge, and I'm supposed to be, there's plenty of better stuff behind. Shake hands, if you please, sir. You know me by name—Paul Fink. I hope you'll see my signature at the bottom of a good many fat checks before you've finished writing plays."

"That's very nice of you, Mr. Fink," Philip declared. "Now I am sure you all want your supper."

At a sign from Philip the maitre d'hotel handed round the tray of cocktails. Mr. Fink raised his glass.

"Here's success to the play," he exclaimed, "and good luck to all of us!"

Tossed Off Glass.

He tossed off the contents of the glass and they all followed his example. Then they took their places at the little round table and the service of supper began. The conversation somewhat naturally centered around Philip. The three strangers were all interested in his personality and the fact that he had no previous work to his credit. It was unusual, almost dramatic, and for a time both Philip and Elizabeth found themselves hard put to it to escape the constant wave of good-natured but very pertinent questions.

"You'll have a dose of our newspapermen tomorrow, sir," Mr. Fink promised him. "They'll be buzzing around you all day long. They'll want to know everything, from where you get your clothes and what cigarettes you smoke, to how you like beer to your work and what complexioned typist you prefer. They're some boys, I can tell you."

Philip's eyes met Elizabeth's across the table. The same instinct of disquietude kept them both, for a moment, silent.

"I am afraid," Elizabeth sighed, "that Mr. Ware will find it rather hard to appreciate some of our American friends."

"They're good fellows," Mr. Fink declared heartily. "white men, all three. So long as you don't try to put 'em off on a false stunt, or anything of that sort, they'll sling the ink about some. Ed Harris was in my room just after the record and he showed me some of the stuff. I tell you he means to boost us."

Elizabeth laid her hand upon her manager's arm.

"You're delightful, every one of them," she agreed, "but, Mr. Fink, you have such influence with them. I wonder if I dare give you just a hint? Mr. Ware has passed through some very painful times lately. He is so anxious to forget, and I really don't wonder at it myself. I am sure he will be delighted to talk with all of them as to the future and his future plans but do you think you could just drop them a hint to go quietly as regards the last?"

Little Perplexed

Mr. Fink was a little perplexed, but inclined to be sympathetic. He glanced towards Philip, who was deep in conversation with Sara Denison.

"Why, I'll do my best, Miss Dalstan," he promised. "You know what the boys are, though. They do love a story."

"I am not going to have Mr. Ware's story published in every newspaper in New York," Elizabeth said firmly, "and the newspaper man who worms the history of Mr. Ware's misfortunes out of him, and then makes use of it, will be no friend of mine. Ask them to be sports Mr. Fink, there's a dear."

"I'll do what I can," he promised. "Mr. Ware isn't the first man in the world who has flunked the limelight, and from what I can see of him it probably wasn't his fault if things did go a little brooked in the past. I'll do my best, Miss Dalstan. I promise you that. I'll look in at the club tonight and drop a few hints around."

Elizabeth patted his hand and smiled at him very sweetly. The conversation flowed back once more into its former channels, became a medley of confused chaff, disjointed streams of congratulation, of toast-drinking and pleasant repartees. Then Mr. Fink suddenly rose to his feet.

"Say," he exclaimed, "we've all drunk one another's health. There's just one other friend I think we ought to take a glass of wine with. Yes, he'd give something to be with us tonight! You'll agree with me, Miss Dalstan, I know. Let's empty a full glass to Sylvanus Bower!"

There was a curious silence for a second or two, then a clamor of assenting voices. For a single moment Philip felt a sharp pang at his heart. Elizabeth was gazing steadily out of the room, a queer tremble at her lips, a look in her eyes which puzzled him, a look almost of fear, of some sort of apprehension. The moment passed, but Elizabeth's face, as she raised her glass, was a little overdone, her gaiety too easily assumed.

Drank His Health

"Why, of course!" she declared. "I never was thinking of Sylvanus!"

They drank his health noisily. Philip set down his glass empty. A curious instinct kept his lips sealed. He crushed down and stifled the memory of that sudden idea. He did not even ask the one natural question.

"Say, where is Sylvanus Bower these days?" Mr. Fink enquired.

"In Honolulu, when last I heard," Elizabeth replied lightly, "but then one never knows really where he is."

Philip became naturally the central figure of the little gathering. Mr. Fink was anxious to arrange a little dinner, to introduce him to some fellow workers. Noel Bridges invited him to the Authors' Cocktail Club and a luncheon there. Philip accepted gratefully everything that was offered to him. It was no good doing things by halves, he told himself. The days of his solitude were over. Even so, when, finally, the last of his guests, he glanced for a moment into the anteroom behind, and remembered those few fleeting moments of suspense, like a man who is him with a curious sense of unreality—they became merely, to some other man, something in some other world!

"You are happy?" Elizabeth murmured, as she took his arm and they waited in the portico below for her automobile.

He had no longer any idea of telling her of that disquieting visit. The touch of her hair blown against his cheek, as he had helped her on with her cloak, something in her voice, some slight, difference, a queer, half expostulating look in the eyes that fell with a curious uneasiness before his, drove every thought of future danger out of his mind. He had at least the present! He answered without a moment's hesitation.

"For the first time in my life"

She gave the chauffeur a whispered order as she stepped into the car.

"I have told him to go home by Riverside Drive," she said, as they glided off. "It is a little farther, and I love the air at this time of night."

He clasped her fingers—suddenly felt, with the leaning of her body her heart beating against his. With that wave of passion there was an instant and protentous change in their attitudes. The soft protectiveness which had sometimes seemed to shine out of her face, to envelop him in its warmth, had disappeared. She was no longer the stronger. She looked at him almost with fear, and he was electrically conscious of all the vigor and strength of his stunted manhood, was master at last of his fate, accepting battle, willing to fight whatever might come for the sake of the joy of these moments. She crept into his arms almost humbly.

Making It Worse

It is a dangerous thing when one has let slip an unfortunate remark to try to cover up a blunder. A lady was talking with the wife of a judge about her son's choice of a profession. "I don't want him to be a lawyer," she said, "Why not?" asked the judge's wife. "I think there is nothing much finer than the legal profession for a bright boy." "Well," said the lady bluntly, "a lawyer has to tell many untruths." Then it dawned on her that she was talking to the wife of a lawyer, so she hastily added "That is—er—to be a good lawyer!"

With most of the virtues, and no glaring faults—

Except one!

He simply WILL NOT listen when his wife speaks!

He simply cannot discuss a subject with her, sanely and rationally!

If she should announce from the housetops that the end of the world had come, he would not be impressed.

He would merely sniff and remark:

"Well, what on earth do you expect me to do about it?"

If she casually observes that the corner grocer has gone out of business,

He retorts, scintillatingly, "Well he has the right to hasn't he?"

But what he actually means is,

"It's not worth while arguing with you. You don't know what you're talking about, and I couldn't make you understand if I tried.

"You're only a woman—and perfectly unreasonable.

"But don't mind MY comfort. You get everything your way, anyhow!

"I'll be a martyr to your whims, as usual!"

It is SO discouraging.

It always puts you in the wrong, somehow, even when you're right.

And besides—it always gives him the "last word"!

And no man is entitled to it——

Except in the States where women vote!

Oh he is a good husband—a nice, kind, reliable husband!

But, as far as companionability goes, he is about as comforting as "the fearful porcupine!"

redwoods that blocks the outlet to our Squaw Creek timber."

"But you're not going to buy it. You told him so, Uncle Seth."

"Of course I'm not going to buy it—at my last offer. It's worth five thousand dollars in the open market, and once I offered him fifty thousand for it. Now I'll give him five."

"I never why he wants to sell," Shirley mused. "From what Bryce Cardigan told me once, his father attaches a sentimental value to that strip of woods; his wife is buried there; it's—or rather, it used to be—a sort of shrine to the old gentleman."

"He's selling it because he's desperate. If he wasn't teetering on the verge of bankruptcy, he'd never let me outgasns him." Pennington replied tartly. "I'll say this for the old fellow: he's no bluffer. However, since I know his financial condition almost to a dollar, I don't think it would be good business to buy his Valley of the Giants now. I'll wait until he has gone bust—and we'll swoop down on it for a thousand dollars."

"I think you're biting off your nose to spite your face, Uncle Seth. The Laguna Grande Lumber Company has that outlet. In dollars and cents, what is it worth to the company?"

"If I thought I couldn't get it from Cardigan a few months from now, I'd go as high as a hundred thousand, for it tonight," he answered coolly.

"In that event, I advise you to take it, for fifty thousand. It's terribly hard on old Mr. Cardigan to have to sell it, even at that price."

Matter Closed

As if to indicate that he considered the matter closed, the Colonel drew his chair toward the fire, picked up a magazine and commenced idly to slit the pages. Shirley studied the back of his head for some time, then got out some fancy work and commenced to ply her needle. And as she pied it, a thought, nebulous at first, gradually took form in her head until eventually she murmured loud enough for the Colonel to hear

"I'll do it."

"Do what?" Pennington queried.

"Something nice for somebody who did something nice for me," she answered.

"That McTavish girl?" he suggested.

"Poor Moira! Isn't she sweet, Uncle Seth? I'm going to give her that black suit of mine. I've scarcely worn it——"

"I thought so," he interrupted with an indulgent yawn. "Well, do whatever makes for your happiness, my dear. That's all money is for."

The Two Voices

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

SHE began to cry in self-pity. But her tears brought no touch of compassion to her companion's face.

"You've got to stand it!" Ruth declared sternly. "His father has just told me that Hugh's life—or, if not that, his happiness may depend on his quiet and peace of mind now. The doctors say so."

"Well, his father can't back here in a minute, won't he? Let him go to Hugh, please!" Doris begged.

"He's gone down to the office. He thought Hugh would be safe with you." Ruth added bitterly. "Go back to him at once, Doris."

"I can't! You—or somebody else—will have to go," the older girl whimpered. "Later, perhaps, when I get used to it—but not now——"

For an instant Ruth Courtney hesitated. Then, with a swift determination she put on her hat and coat and sped noiselessly up the stairs.

Doris had left the door of the library open, and Ruth paused on the threshold. On the couch was crouched a thin figure, the head buried in the hands. And, as she looked, a great sob shook the gaunt frame.

"Hugh" she murmured, crossing the room to the couch.

The man lifted his head, his eyes turning vacantly in her direction.

"Doris," he said hoarsely, "you cannot fool me! You did the best you could—but I know it all. You can't stand me—changed as I am—and blind"——

His voice broke on the dreadful word, and he buried his head again in his hands.

With a passionate gesture, Ruth Courtney dropped on her knees by the couch and gathered the shaken form in her arms.

"Darling! Darling!" she sobbed. "Don't talk like that! Dear I only ran away for a moment to speak to someone who was waiting downstairs."

The man caught her to his breast and she could feel the heavy beating of his heart. "You mean—can you mean," he said breathlessly—"that you love me as much as ever."

"More than ever," she answered—"more—far more than ever."

"You are sure?"

"Sure," she replied solemnly. "As sure as that I am alive."

"Thank God!" he whispered, tears rolling from under the lids that he now closed. "Thank God!"

CHAPTER XIX.

"I MUST not stay with you very long now, Hugh dear," Ruth Courtney said after she had calmed the agitated invalid. "Your father wants you to be quiet,"

She had persuaded him to lie down again, and was sitting on him, stroking his forehead. From time to time he seized her hand and kissed it; then, with a sigh of content, again closed his eyelids wearily.

"There is so much I want to say to you!" he said several times.

Her answer was always the same.

HIGH HEELS PUT CORNS ON TOES

Tells women how to dry up a corn so it lifts out without pain.

Modern high-heel footwear buckles the toes and produces corns, and many of the thousands of bunion cases of infection and lockjaw are the result of woman's suicidal habit of trying to cut away these painful pests.

For little cost a bottle can be obtained at any pharmacy a quarter of an ounce of a drug called freezone, which is effective to dry up and cause any hard or soft corn or callus without the slightest danger or inconvenience.

A few drops of freezone applied directly upon the tender, aching corn stops the soreness and shortly the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out. It is a sticky substance, which dries the moment it is applied, and thousands of men and women use it because the corn shrivels up and comes out without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Cut this out and try it if your corns bother you.—Advertisement.

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness cut out this formula and take it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¾ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing rumbling, buzzing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.—Advertisement.

The Valley of the Giants

BY PETER B. KYNE

"I MEAN that if we can start building our road and have it half completed before Pennington jumps on us, Gregory will simply have to come to our aid in self-defense. Once he ties up with us, he's committed to the task of seeing us through. If we fail, he must pick us up and carry us, whether he wants to or not; and I will see to arrange the deal that he will have to, I can do it, I tell you."

John Cardigan raised his hand. "No," he said firmly, "I will not allow you to do this. That way—that is the Pennington method. If we fail, my son, we pass out like gentlemen, not blackguards. We will not take advantage of this man Gregory's faith. If he joins forces with us, we lay our hand on the table and let him look."

"Then he'll never join hands with us, partner. We're done."

"We're not done, my son. We have one alternative, and I'm going to take it. I've got to—for your sake. Moreover, your mother would have wished it so."

"You don't mean——"

"Yes, I do. I'm going to sell Pennington my Valley of the Giants. Thank God, that quarter-section does not belong to the Cardigan Redwood Lumber Company. It is my personal property, and it not mortgaged. Pennington can never foreclose on it—and, until he gets it, twenty-five hundred acres of virgin timber on Squaw Creek are valueless—ha, a mirage of riches to him. Bryce, he has to have it; and he'll pay the price, when he knows I mean business."

With a sweeping gesture he waved aside the arguments that rose to his son's lips. "Lead me to the telephone," he commanded; and Bryce, recognizing his sire's unalterable determination, obeyed.

"Find Pennington's number in the telephone-book," John Cardigan commanded next.

Bryce found it, and his father proceeded to get the Colonel on the wire. "Pennington," he said hoarsely, "this is John Cardigan speaking. I've decided to sell you that quarter-section that blocks your timber on Squaw Creek.

Colonel Refuses

"Indeed," the Colonel purred. "I had an idea you were going to present it to the city for a natural park."

"I've changed my mind. I've decided to sell at your last offer."

"I've changed my mind, too. I've decided not to buy—at my last offer. Good-night"

Slowly John Cardigan hung the receiver on the hook, turned and grasped for his son. When he found him, the old man held him for a moment in his arms. "Lead me upstairs, son," he muttered presently. "I'm tired. I'm going to bed."

When Colonel Seth Pennington turned from the telephone and found his niece, Shirley read his triumph in his face. "Old Cardigan has capitulated at last," he purred cunningly. "We've played a waiting game and I've done he-dust telephoned to say he'd accept my best offer for the Valley of the Giants, as the sentimental old fool calls that quarter-section of huge

Eases Colds

At once! Relief with "Pape's Cold Compound"

The first dose eases your cold! Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a severe cold and ends all grippe misery.

Relief awaits you! Open your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of your head; stop nose running; relieve the headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only a few cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance. Tastes nice. Contains no quinine. Insist on Pape's.—Advertisement.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

LET "DANDERINE" SAVE YOUR HAIR

Get rid of every bit of that ugly dandruff and stop falling hair

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After several applications all dandruff usually goes and hair stops coming out. Every hair in your head soon shows new life, vigor, brightness, thickness and more color.—Advertisement.

Stocks Irregular in New York All the Morning; Call Rate 6 Per Cent.; Markets Dull

LOWER PRICES FOR BOSTON STOCKS

Prices were lower on the Boston Stock Exchange when business began and the market remained weak during the morning. A few issues bucked and filled, but the majority were inactive. Carson Hill and Waltham Watch rallied from the low levels of Thursday and showed gains from the start until noon. At the highest Carson Hill was up a point and Waltham Watch advanced as much. There was action to Mayflower-Old Colony, and it sold fractionally higher. Packing issues weakened and auto accessory stocks were neglected. Only a few coppers were traded in and they were irregular. Davis Daly receded almost a point during the first hour. The compressor at its plant in Butte has broken down and this will diminish shipments for a fortnight or more.

The features of the new discount and rediscount rates of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston are 6 per cent. flat on commercial paper and trade acceptances and 6½ per cent. on Liberty Bonds and Victory notes. The former represents advances of 1¼ per cent over the old 4½ per cent. rates, while the latter is an advance of ¾ of 1 per cent. from 4¾ per cent. to 5½ per cent.

St. Mary's Land was up more than a point, but lost part of the gain while Mexican Investment moved forward as much and retained its advance. Edison receded two points.

Among issues to sell ex-dividend were American Zinc common and preferred, Boston & Maine preferred and National Leather.

CURB TRADING MORE ACTIVE.

There was more activity on the Curb at the opening than for several days and the tone had improved over night. Among strong issues at the start were Boston & Montana, Black Hawk, Guilfport, Mexican Silver Metals and Truro Steel. Stocks to open lower included Arizona Commercial, Arizona Silver, Clinton Wright, Gilliland, Simms Petroleum, White Oil, Silver Reef, Pilgrim and Orpheum.

At the end of an hour Truro was up ¾ at 3⅜, while White Oil was off ⅜ at 3⅝, Gilliland ⅛ at 4⅝, and Orpheum ¼ at 23¾. Arizona Extension, Arizona and Simms had receded earlier losses and were unchanged. Oils had improved somewhat as a group.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 23.—In the face of steadier cables the cotton market opened easier and from 8 to 20 points lower, except January, it was 8 points higher. The belief of the Federal Reserve Bank in advancing discount rates caused selling by commission houses and there was also local pressure during the gaining figure. Liverpool sold shortly after the opening the list broke 30 points under the early close. Opening prices were: January, 38.10; March, 36.15; May, 34.15; July, 32.75; August, 31.60; October, 29.95; December, 29.80.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, Jan. 23.—The treasury gained $524,000 from the banks on Thursday, reducing the cash net loss since Friday to $28,219,000.

DISCOUNT RATE RAISE WAS EXPECTED

Motor Issues Weakened, but Steel and Oil Stocks Ruled Firm

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stock were irregular in New York at noon and that situation has prevailed on the exchange most of the time during the morning. The market was weakest at the opening when the whole list is considered, reacting and rallying at intervals afterwards. Motors receded the most in the second. Steels and oils held fairly firm. The advance in rediscount rates by Federal Reserve banks had been expected and caused no surprise.

The changes were no greater than bankers had forecasted and their effect on the stock market only slightly depressing. Trading was quiet and of about the same volume as yesterday. Call money renewed at 6 per cent. Demand sterling opened at 3.63, off 1¾, francs at 11.92, off 10 centimes; lire at 14.62, off 5 centimes; and marks at .8145.

BALLY FOLLOWS WEAK START.

After a poor start the market grew still weaker and the recessional lasted until prices got low enough to induce buying. A little demand caused a quick rally and at the end of a half hour the list was irregular, but with gains preponderating. Fluctuations had averaged small in either direction and in general as it not directed particularly against stock traders, it is stated, but their activity has been first to feel its effects.

STEELS WERE FIRMEST.

While they lacked pronounced strength as a class steels were the firmest in early trading. Rubbers ruled a little higher, oils were mixed and motors and tobaccos rather weak. Coppers had tendency to ease off and this was the case with rails. Both groups were sluggish during the forenoon. Sales were on a small and active stock, making a first hour gain of four points. A number of specialties advanced, including American Woolen common, Corn Products and Bartlett. Weakest issues included Tobacco Securities, Tobacco Products, Sumatra, United Cigar Stores, American Beach, Leather, Pan American and U. S. Food Products. General Motors and Texas Co. were among stocks to decline more than two points and then to recover and show gains. The upward movement was helped along by covering of shorts. This began on some scale as soon as any buying for the other account developed.

REMARKABLE SHOWING BY FIRST NATIONAL BANK

Boston banks had a prosperous year in 1919, the total net earnings of the fifteen national institutions totalling $3,026,247 before Federal tax and dividend payments, but after charge-offs. Net earnings equalled 37.96 per cent. on $29,700,000 capital stock. Last year's net exceeded that of 1918, when it totalled $7,214,466, or 18.49 per cent. on 38,400,000 stock. Dividends paid in 1919 exceeded by $22,876 the earnings of all Boston national banks for the thirteen months preceding the outbreak of the world war in 1914. The First National Bank made a remarkable showing. Capitalized at $1,500,000, its surplus and undivided profits amounted to $19,979,186, its net earnings to $2,246,014, and it earned 42.32 per cent. on its stock and paid 20 per cent. in dividends.

MORE SUGAR MELTING BY AMERICAN REFINERS

Increased receipts of raws have enabled sugar refiners in this country to expand meltings. Last week the total at Atlantic ports was 48,000 tons, an increase of 7,000 tons over the preceding week. Raw sugar stocks at those ports total approximately 25,182 tons at present. Cuban exports last week amounted to 62,619 tons and could have been doubled if overseas transportation were adequate. About 19,125 tons were shipped to Europe and 20,566 tons to Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

American refiners are quoting refined sugar from 15 cents to 16 cents, less 2 per cent., a price which means a profit of from 1.46 to 2.64 cents.

Car Order for Canada

Canadian manufacturers have received from Belgium a railway equipment order for fifteen locomotives and 3,000 cars. The order amounts to about $10,000,000.

Judge Anderson Puts Needed Crimp in Hunting of Reds

It is a relief now and then to hear from Judge George W. Anderson of the United States Court. He gets out into the fresh air often enough to be able to say something from the bench that has red blood in it and isn't saturated with the dust of decaying sheepskin.

Judge Anderson has put a very much needed crimp into the reckless and lawless method by which some of our Federal officials are hunting down alleged revolutionists. The facts as the American understands them are as follows:

A man named Frank was arrested by a local Federal official on a charge of being a "Red" and a foreigner and was kept in confinement for several days before his lawyer succeeded in compelling the Federal officials to show the ground they had for holding Frank. It appears that the Federal officials assumed that a man must prove that he is a citizen when it suits the Federal officials to assume that he is not a citizen. Mr. Frank testified that he was born in Cincinnati, O., forty-six years ago. There is no evidence on the part of the government contradicting Mr. Frank's testimony. Judge Anderson ruled that a man's citizenship must be assumed and that the burden was on the government to prove that he was not a citizen.

This is certainly the ruling of a wise judge who is not subject to passing waves of hysteria, in which constitutional guarantees is thrown overboard and the Bill of Rights, the most precious part of our Constitution, is daily violated under pretense of protecting that very Constitution.

While Judge Anderson was United States District Attorney during the war he had to deal with the hysteria concerning German spies, which is the progenitor of the present hysteria concerning Red revolutionists. He found that all kinds of designing people were appealing to patriotism which Dr. Johnson declared was always the "last refuge of a scoundrel," either to cover up their own shortcomings or to hide some unpatriotic and unlawful design. One very good incident of the way in which our excitement about German spies was attempted to be exploited shows also how useful a level-headed man in public office can be to the community.

One day there came into the then United States District Attorney's office a very intelligent and honest looking young man manacled to the wrist of an officer. This was the story he told. There was in Massachusetts during the war a certain manufacturing company employing engineers to make certain drawings. One of those engineers applied to the company for an increase in wages. It was denied him. Another company then offered him a very much larger wage than he had asked his then employer to give him. He accepted the offer of the other company and was about to leave, carrying with him some designs which he made in his own time for his own use, when his employer had him arrested as a German spy.

District Attorney Anderson immediately investigated the man's story and found it to be correct and he ordered his release and said some appropriate things to the employer who was trying to get what did not belong to him under the cover of popular excitement about German spies.

We Were All Left-Handed Once

That Was Nature's Work. Now We Have to Educate It

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

The French Academy of Medicine is advocating that all school children be taught to write with the left hand as well as with the right.

This action results from the difficulties which French soldiers lost their right hands in the war have in acquiring proficiency with their left hands.

The oldest hieroglyphics and earliest art were done with the left hand. The cuneiforms, or writings on baked clay, which constitute the earliest written history, all bear evidence of left-handed execution.

It was in fighting that the right hand received its first training.

The heart, the most vulnerable point of the body for the early weapons of stone and bronze, being on the left-hand side of the body, the left arm was used for protection while the attack was made with the right.

Later some inventive savage bethought himself of making a shield which could be held over the heart, and the easiest way to keep it in position was to fasten it in some way to the left forearm.

From that time on, the left arm was a purely defensive implement, and in order to make the right arm strong for battle the burden of work was transferred to it, and the human race became right-handed.

The value of ambidexterity, or the equal use of both hands, would seem to be easily established. To be able to shift a task from hand to hand without losing efficiency would save fatigue, and, in such occupations as telegraphy or where constant exertion required, avoid the early wearing out of the muscles.

The training of the left hand is not at all difficult. The awkwardness and unmanageableness which accompany the first attempts very quickly disappear if practice is persisted in. Many who train their left hands during their studies, in order that they may acquire equal proficiency and not lose their capacity in case of injury.

The pianist necessarily has equal power and adeptness in each hand, and the violinist has greater facility with the left than with the right.

Landseer, the great painter of animals, not only used either hand with equal proficiency, but frequently astonished his visitors by drawing with both hands at the same time.

The man who works equally well with either hand has two hands instead of one, a condition which in most kinds of battles

More Truth Than Poetry

PROSPECTIVE PERFECTION

By S. E. KISER

THE men who are busy with things scientific
Will doubtless find out in some distant July
Or August, perhaps, when the heat is terrific,
How to take from the surplus a Winter supply;
That is, they'll discover some method of storing
The heat that in Summertime causes distress,
And then, when the blizzards of Winter are blowing,
We can use it for making our fuel bills less.

AND some day the tides, in response to our wishes,
Will cause all the pinions of commerce to spin;
In addition to washing and wiping the dishes,
They will plant our potatoes and gather them in.
And the winds that blow hither and thither at present
Will blow as we wish or compel them to blow;
The scenes that are dreary will all be made pleasant,
Where sorrow is lingering gladness will glow;
No wrinkle will mar any womanly face,
All work will be done by self-winding machines,
And these pleasing and wonderful things will take place
When all of the poets can own limousines.

THERE will come a sublime and a limitless season
When wrong will be ended and all will be right,
When men will act only according to reason,
And schoolboys will study with eager delight,
When the women will all be contented and slender,
When scandal and hate will be things of the past,
When the bachelors all will be glad to surrender,
And every old maid will be wedded at last—
And all of these things will occur at the time
When the story that's vulgar will cease to cause mirth,
When the man who is ninety will be in his prime,
And each of the preachers is paid what he's worth.

AN EASY WAY OUT

Liquor dealers are going to sue the United States for $400,000,000 damages, because their business has been destroyed. If you don't wish to serve on the jury, just hint that you believe in prohibition—or that you don't.

PAY HER A REAL COMPLIMENT

Do not say that she is pretty; she has heard that said before,
But send a sweeter gladness to her yearning, eager soul
By letting her discover that you love and prize her more
Even than a pound of sugar or a shovelful of coal.

GO SLIPPING past.
AND THE puttering tugs.
AND THE bigger ships.
I MET Mr. Hearst.
AND WE both sat down.
AND I looked at the river.
AND SAID to Mr. Hearst.
"IT'S SNOWING out there."
AND HE said: "Yes."
AND THEN I said.
"AND IT sure looks cold."
AND HE agreed.
AND THEN I said.
"AND IN California.
"THE SUN is shining.
"AND THE rivers out there.
"ARE BURNISHED bright.
"WITH THE shimmering gold.
"THAT THE sun sends down."
AND HE agreed.
BECAUSE THAT is the place.
WHERE HE was born.
AND THEN I said.
"AND THE fields out there.
"AREN'T FROZEN fields.
"AND THE grass is green.
"AND THERE is no snow.
"AND IT isn't cold.
"AND ORANGE blossoms.
"PERFUME THE air.
"AND IN one spot.
"THERE IS a ranch.
"THAT WANDERS around.
"WHERE THE hills begin.
"AND CLIMB their way.
"TO MOUNTAIN tops.
"AND I haven't been there.
"IN MOST a year."
AND MR. Hearst said.
"AND YOU want to go?"
AND I said I did.
AND HE said I might.
AND OUR tickets are bought.
AND OUR trunks are checked.
AND WHEN you read this.
WE'LL BE on our way.
AND IF anyone cares.
IF I ever return.
I WANT them to know.
THAT I'LL work all the time.
AND BE here every day.
AND WILL soon be back.
FOR HE won't let me stay.
BUT A little while.

I THANK you.

WOMEN TAKE NEW STAND ON BIRTH RATE

By Garrett P. Serviss

PROFESSOR ELLEN HAYES, of Wellesley, "squarely challenging" a Mr. Dublin's assumption that a declining birth rate is an evil, demands in language warm with indignation:

"What reason has anybody given why the hither and the uttermost parts of North America say, should forthwith be populated as rapidly and as densely as may be, even by elect stock? Why should the natural forests be so hurriedly worked into lumber and the country's non-restorable natural resources—coal, petroleum, gas and others—be exploited to the exhaustion point?"

"It is the crudest form of collective selfishness," she goes on, "for any one generation to act as if it had a final lien on the earth when at best it is only a temporary tenant," and she quotes somebody's withering sarcasm: "Few men really care what happens to posterity."

On another aspect of the birth-rate question, Professor Hayes' words are electric with fervid feeling. "To cook a thousand meals a year, to make beds and wash dishes a thousand times a year, to bear children—always to bear children, in meekness and resignation, has been held to be woman's lot as ordered by Providence, or, at least, by Nature. What else could a normal woman want to do?"

Has the Deciding Vote

This doctrine, she avers, has survived from savage ages, because "philosophers, theologians and statesmen, no less than common persons, have failed to perceive that no conclusions based on observations of unfree human subjects can safely be drawn regarding what is normal to those subjects." Now woman is gaining a "new freedom," and "the most notable consequence of the new freedom is that each woman is deciding for herself whether she will marry or not. And in case she does marry, the deciding vote as to the number of children to follow is likely to rest with her."

It is the results of this new freedom which Professor Hayes suggests as the great generic cause of a declining birth rate, a phenomenon which, as we have seen, does not alarm her as it alarms statesmen who follow the old Napoleonic doctrine that the most useful woman to the State is the one who is the mother of the greatest number of children.

Anybody can see that the practical fruits of that doctrine must increase the number of wars, and make every war more bloody. It also must increase something which is, in some respects, almost more horrible than war, and that is the congestion of the gigantic modern city. If you want to shudder over the possibilities that they may involve, read H. G. Wells' "Story of the Days to Come."

A satirical philosopher might suggest that the soundest ground on which to base a world's league of peace would be, not limitation of armament, but limitation of birth rate. For, after all, is not Professor Hayes right about the ethics of the question? Is it not true that we are behaving very much like unreasoning animals who breed descendants at a faster rate than the means of maintaining life increase? And is it not at this moment painfully evident that the world already, though it is to be hoped only temporarily, has reached a point where its production falls behind the demands made by a rapid rise of the millions to the plane of living formerly occupied only by the thousands?

Definite Limits

The earth's superficies contains about 197,000,000 square miles, and even all-conquering science can never hope to enlarge its boundaries. Nearly three-fourths are buried under water, and no biologist sees any prospect that reversed evolution will carry us back to the fish form. So it is beyond dispute that definite and untraversible limits exist to the population of the globe, and those limits are determined not only by lack of room but also by lack of means to maintain life. Here science can help, but probably much less than optimism suggests.

The great question is whether it is better to leave the restriction of numbers to the rude, unmerciful hand of Nature, or to ameliorate the effects by taking control for ourselves. The right to live, once born, is certain, but whether there is a right to be born is not a practical question.

GIRLS MUST LEAVE THE ASKING TO MEN

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

I HAVE before me a letter from a girl which is the counterpart of others which I receive from time to time from many different parts of the country.

These vary somewhat in detail, but they are the same in essence. The story remains unaltered.

The heroine meets the hero. They see a great deal of each other and the mutual attraction grows. He shows every sign of being deeply in love with her. Then, for some reason, usually at the beckoning of business, he departs for some distant place. The letters between them are at first very frequent; then gradually or abruptly his cease. She hears no more of him.

After detailing these facts, the girl whose letter I am considering asks me what she had better do. She cannot understand this silence on the part of the young man. She is convinced that he is ill, or that some dreadful misfortune has befallen him. She cannot endure the anxiety, and she feels as if she must discover the reason for it all. She is even ready to take the train and go to him if necessary. Can I give her an idea of what to do?

Girl Must Do Waiting

I am sorry, but I can only suggest that she do nothing. All of the things she fears may be true, but the chances are against such possibilities. And she will only be putting herself in an unpleasant position if she pursues the matter.

He may have changed his mind in a new environment and surrounded by new influences. He may have met another girl whom he finds more attractive than the girl he left behind him. He may have become immersed in business and have decided that he does not wish to be tied down to a long engagement. And in consideration of all these possible circumstances, it is only sensible for the girl to let him begin the correspondence again, since he was the first to drop it.

The same girl who has written regarding this quandary has also put another question up to me:

"Should girls propose? And if not, why not?"

That is a question which has been threshed out again and again; but it is evident that it still remains undecided in certain feminine minds.

Woman at Disadvantage

What, my dear girl, is such a proposal as you suggest? That the young man of your choice and yourself should be married and that he should thereafter take you for better or for worse, look after you in sickness and health, and provide for your support and maintenance as long as you both shall live.

It is certainly a large proposition, and as such it has its dangers. It gives the man an awful comeback. He can comport himself as he pleases and, no matter how much you may remonstrate with him, the answer will always be ready, "I didn't ask you to marry me."

The effects of overstepping a convention are sometimes more unpleasant than the effects of committing a crime. If you steal his watch, he might forgive and forget it; provided he were desperately in love with you, he might either get mushy over it or be amused by it, according to his nature. In one case he would say, "The poor little darling needed the money and her maiden modesty prevented her from asking for it," and the ready tears would spring to his eyes. Or he would laugh and say, "Best joke that ever happened. She stole my watch. Clever girl!"

But the chances are that if you asked him to marry you he would turn it over in his mind to kingdom come.

Whenever you did the least thing of which he did not approve, he would murmur to himself: "What can you expect? There's something wrong about her. She asked me to marry her. It's not done. Queer streak she has. No really nice, refined girl would do such a thing. It simply is not done."

I know, however, of one happy marriage where the woman proposed to the man. She was rich, and he was poor and hard-working and ambitious. She saw that he was in love with her, but would not ask her to marry him while he had so little to offer. So she asked him instead, and financed certain of his business schemes, which prospered exceedingly; and they have lived happily ever afterward. But such cases are the exceptions.
